

British Fighting To Last Ditch in Defending Tobruk

Launch Counter Attacks and at Least Delay Nazi Advance

Nazis Bring Up Heavy Guns in Effort To Capture Seaport

By EDWARD KENNEDY

CAIRO, June 19 (AP)—British mobile forces, fanning out northward from their new line along the Egyptian border, jostled German preparations for an all-out assault on Tobruk today and gave that isolated but vital British seaport fortress time to perfect its defenses.

Tobruk, Libyan port eighty miles from Egypt, bristled with newly-strung barbed wire, fresh-laid minefields and strengthened pillboxes curving in great arcs around all its shoreward approaches.

The Germans were hastening to bring up great 210-millimeter (8.26-inch) cannon to try to reduce the defenses which defied them for nearly eight months last year.

Already, Tobruk's outer works were under attack, as indicated by a British communiqué which reported destruction of three Axis tanks and damage to four others in the Tobruk area.

Decision Delayed

But the hour of decision was delayed by British armored sorties from their strengthened frontier lines. These, said a communiqué, have succeeded in confining the enemy columns to the desolate coastal strip.

The RAF slowed the Axis program still further by continued behind-the-lines strafing and bombardment.

(Some informed persons in London suggested that Nazi Marshal Erwin Rommel, driven by orders from Berlin, might try to tackle the British border lines without waiting to storm Tobruk.)

British quarters in both Cairo and London have said previously, however, that no real land offensive against Egypt can be maintained from the west unless the attacker first holds Tobruk with its deep harbor as a supply base.

On the other hand, a British military commentator in London said that possession of Tobruk was "not essential" to a successful British defense of Egypt.)

British Lines Stronger

While the situation now is about the same as it was before the British westward drive of last November, the British lines on the border are stronger than they were then.

The British now hold the upper Salum escarpment which rises 700 feet above Salum Harbor, and are in good positions at Halfaya (Hell-Fire) pass.

Last year the Germans held both of these and were dislodged only after a stubborn conflict.

(London observers, apparently viewing the situation with less optimism than those in Egypt, suggested that recent sustained air attacks on Malta had been a cover which enabled Rommel to move a new armored division across the Mediterranean from Italy, and that such a fresh force would vastly increase British difficulties.)

Suspending of Fairs Would Be Hard Blow To Harness Racing

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP)—Request by the government that state and county fairs be suspended until the war is over has hit at the very foundation of light harness horse racing.

Will Gehagen, secretary of the United States Trotting Association, said today there are approximately 400 county fairs alone at which trotters and pacers race. He estimated that some 5,000 of the 6,000 active trotters and pacers race at county fairs.

There are circuits, such as the Grand Circuit and Ohio's independent tracks, such as New York's Roosevelt, Saratoga and Buffalo Raceways, that are not entirely connected with fairs but not enough of them to furnish competition for anyone near all of the horses.

Mrs. Paton's Letters To Darlington Highlight Effort To Break Her Will

By AMY PORTER

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 19 (AP)—The Rev. Dr. Henry Darlington was "Dear Henry" to the late Mrs. Anna H. Paton and she was "with love as always, Anna" to him.

Twenty-eight letters containing these and other affectionate phrases were read to the jury today in the trial of Mrs. Paton's estate which gives Dr. Darlington thirty per cent of Mrs. Paton's $1,800,000 estate.

Three of Mrs. Paton's relatives seek to have the will set aside. They claim that Dr. Darlington,

BRITISH CRITICS SAY ROMMEL HAS BEST GUNS AND FIGHTERS

By NOLAND NORGAARD

LONDON, June 19 (AP)—Britain unhappily sought tonight the reasons for her sudden reversal in Libya, and competent military critics supplied the least palatable answer: the German Rommel had bigger and better guns and tanks and used them with greater skill.

Madeline Webb Gets Life Term, Friends Must Die

Girl Convicted in Murder Case Holds Poise in Court

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP)—Madeline Webb, whose probation reports described as not so smart as she thought she was, posed theatrically outside a General Sessions courtroom today to fix her hair and to powder her nose before she was sentenced to prison for life.

Three minutes later her lover, Eli Shonbrun, 34, and John D. Cullen, 45, accomplices in the March 4 robbery-murder of Mrs. Susan Flora Reich, wealthy refugee, were sentenced to die in Sing Sing prison's electric chair during the week of July 27.

Only a jury's recommendation for mercy saved the 28-year-old Stillwater, Okla., model from hearing Judge Jonah J. Goldstein pronounce a similar sentence for her.

Had Miss Webb known what Irving W. Halpern, chief probation officer, reported about her, she might not have accepted the sentence so quietly or walked so haughtily from the courtroom, crowded with spectators including Mrs. Reich's husband.

Belittled in Court

"Her affectations of sophistication are basically shallow, transparent and trite," he said. Her theatrical ambitions stemmed from her childhood when her father "dressed her in tricky rompers, flashy frocks, etc., to show her off before all comers, heralding her as a future star of the stage."

She wasn't the honor student at Oklahoma A. and M. college she pretended to be either. Halpern said, adding that her intelligence quotient was at the borderline between low average and dull normal intelligence.

Halpern even questioned her asserted undying love for Shonbrun, saying "there is evident a sincere, but not necessarily profound affection."

Shonbrun was described as a man who had never matured emotionally. (Continued on Page 2, Col. 1)

Editor Supplies Answer

"Quite simply and bluntly the reason is that from the beginning we have underestimated the strength, cunning, resources and recuperative power of the enemy."

"We did not believe he could have better tanks than ours, but he did."

"We did not imagine he would have a still deadlier anti-tank gun."

"The volume of our transport was 'fantastic' but we did not calculate that Rommel's would be even more fantastic. It is a bitter lesson."

The whole story has not come yet from the battlefields but from available information military experts drew these conclusions:

Need More U. S. Tanks

1. Lieut. Gen. Neil M. Ritchie, commander of the British Eighth army, lacked sufficient numbers of United States 28-ton tanks when the excellent 88-millimeter guns of the Germans knocked many of them out of action the British had to depend too much on light cruiser tanks whose two-pounder guns had been relegated to the peashooter class.

2. The British still have lessons to learn about tank tactics, and bravery cannot be substituted for the required skill.

3. Air power over the desert battlefields cannot be made the dominant factor. The RAF started with air superiority and still claims it. Bombing and strafing of some supply vehicles cannot be decisive when hundreds of others get through.

4. Establishment of a strong, static defense line anywhere in Cirenica between Egypt and Tripolitania in the vicinity of El Agheila is out of the question because of limitations on the number of troops which can be maintained efficiently in the desert.

Washington Looks For Early Change In U. S. War Plan

Churchill-Roosevelt Conferences May Produce Important Decisions

Change in Strategic Picture May Influence Both Leaders

By WILLIAM T. PEACOCK

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP)—The surprise Roosevelt-Churchill conference today keyed this capital to anticipation of momentous decisions bringing some new and dramatic turn in the war.

In Congress and elsewhere, speculation revolved for the most part about the possibilities of a British-American invasion of the European coast and of dispatch of a large American expeditionary force to the middle east. None professed, however, to have any information other than that released by the White House.

The progress of the talks between the president and the British prime minister—where they were meeting and what aides they had called in—was hidden in the deepest military secrecy.

No Details Given Out

For the time being, the White House stood on its announcement of last night that Mr. Churchill had arrived in this country for conferences with Mr. Roosevelt on "the war, the conduct of the war and the winning of the war."

Stephen T. Early, presidential secretary, advised reporters at that time that no further statement should be expected this week. From this, it was generally inferred that there would be a statement later but not before Sunday.

In the belief that the conferences were concerned with the highest strategy, most expected that any statement would have little to say on the nature of decisions reached—that this would be left for time and action to disclose.

Meeting here only seven months ago, the heads of the two allied governments agreed on overall strategy. In the intervening months, it has become clear that they anticipated then most of the war's developments up to now.

Much Aid for Australia

In expectation that Malaya and the Dutch East Indies could not be held, the United States concentrated on strengthening Australia and its own Pacific outposts while, meantime, sending such supplies as it could to Russia.

Recent events, however, have greatly altered the strategic picture. Japanese naval power has suffered damaging losses in the battles of the Coral Sea and off Midway—damages so great that Secretary of War Stimson has spoken of a diminished threat to the American west coast.

Meantime, the British situation in the Mediterranean apparently has deteriorated. There are indications that the Germans have succeeded in putting into Libya much stronger forces than British strategists had anticipated.

These developments, what allied action they required, and their relation to the question of the second front repeatedly urged by Russia were generally believed to be the major matters for resolution by the president and prime minister.

Still another possible prime subject was the situation of China, largely cut off from outside aid and confronted with an apparent Japanese drive to knock her out of the war.

Diaper laundries notified customers today they were reducing the number of deliveries each week from three to two to comply with the government's request to cut mileage.

Simms testified that Rogers said there were only three or four rubber engineers qualified to re-draft the plans and that the fee probably would be $50,000. Davidson then asked Rogers for a two-weeks leave to revise the plans "for half the price," the witness added, and Rogers consented.

When Newhall was informed of this situation, the Texan told the committee, he suggested Simms should attempt to add this amount to his previous commitments with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. However, Newhall also declared, the witness added, that no more rubber reclaiming plants were needed.

While it was not brought out in the testimony, Simms told reporters after leaving the witness stand that he had not employed Davidson or gone ahead with his plans.

Local Successes Bolster Morale Of the Chinese

Help To Offset New Japanese Gains in Fukien Area

CHUNGKING, China, June 19 (AP)—The Chinese reported local successes tonight in operations against Japanese bases in Kiangsi and Hupeh provinces, offsetting somewhat new enemy gains in a threatening backdoor drive upon coastal Fukien province and an additional seaborne invasion of neighboring Chekiang.

Nanchang, Japanese Kiangsi base, was said to be under mounting pressure by Chinese forces which have had the city under attack for more than a week, and the high command announced recapture of Kinki, eighty miles to the south.

Repossession of Kinki checked one thrust of the hydra-headed Japanese overland drive against Fukien, but the Chinese acknowledged that the enemy had made an additional advance south of Kwang-feng.

The Chinese Central news agency asserted that in Hunan province, which borders Kiangsi on the west, several hundred Japanese were killed and sixty taken prisoner yesterday in Chinese attacks on the outskirts of Yochow, another big Japanese base.

Japanese forces, making still another landing along China's seaboard, swarmed ashore from six warships yesterday north of Tachow bay in Chekiang province, which is north of Fukien, the Chinese communiqué reported.

WPB Official Accused of Seeking $25,000 Fee from Business Man

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP)—A Senate subcommittee today heard a businessman who had proposed to erect a rubber reclaiming plant testify that an official of the War Production Board offered to take two weeks off from his regular work and re-draft the plant plans for a "half price" fee of $25,000.

Furthermore, Harold A. Simms of Fort Worth, Tex., vice president of the Southwest Rubber Company, testified, it was suggested to him by WPB's rubber chief that the $25,000 might be added to commitments under the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Simms, a witness before the Senate Agriculture subcommittee investigating methods of producing synthetic rubber from grain alcohol, related this story:

He had plans for the plant prepared and went to see Dr. Harry A. Rogers, first assistant to Arthur B. Newhall, WPB rubber co-ordinator, to ask authority to buy the materials needed for the plant.

Churchill Reported Seeking U. S. Force for Libya Front

By ROBERT BUNNELLE

LONDON, June 19 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill was portrayed by competent informants tonight as urgently asking for United States reinforcements to stabilize the Mediterranean front, even though this means that the opening of a full-scale "second front" on the European continent must wait until next spring.

Axis successes in the Libyan desert, these persons said, had thrust the middle east to a position of the highest priority in United Nations strategy. Hence Churchill, now conferring with President Roosevelt in the United States, is said to be convinced that the Mediterranean basin must be held from west, center and east as a necessary prelude to a European victory offensive.

Big Air Raids Likely In the meantime there are expected to be larger-scale Commando attacks on the west coast of the German-occupied continent and very heavy air raids in which American flying forces will take part.

It was pointed out in London that there always is the possibility that if some Commando sortie should result in a good continental foothold, then actual allied invasion might be a reality sooner than is expected.

The London informants said that the Russians fully appreciated the necessity of holding the middle east and were confident they could bar the southern German armies of General Fedor von Bock from the Caucasus if the British and the Americans can keep the Germans out of Egypt, Syria and Iraq and meantime maintain an adequate flow of supplies direct to Russia.

Need Help in Libya The British feeling is said to be that the Middle East still can be saved if the Axis African Corps can be held throughout the torrid season in the desert on the promise that the Yanks will be coming with dive bombers, bigger guns and tanks to reinforce all lines by the time the weather cools.

Strategists here know that Egypt must be held if the Allies are to keep Hitler from the oil fields east of Suez; they also feel that is the main barricade to German-Japanese union in the Indian ocean or Red Sea for a division of the riches of the Indies and severance of the southern allied supply lines to Russia.

The fact that United States army bombers now are operating with the RAF in the Mediterranean area is taken here as proof that President Roosevelt fully appreciates the importance of this theater.

Furious Battles Are Inconclusive, Reports Indicate

Artillery and Air Bombardment Increasing in Intensity

Fighting on Kharkov Sector Is on Greatly Reduced Scale

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW, Saturday, June 20 (AP)—Reinforced German infantry, covered by smoke screen and supported by hundreds of planes and tanks, smashed four times at one point in the Sevastopol defenses yesterday but were hurled back each time with heavy losses. Soviet dispatches reported early today.

At another point four German infantry regiments attacked fiercely for fifteen hours in a desperate attempt to break into the Black Sea naval bastion—and came close to their objective—but finally were repulsed.

Germans Increase Pressure

The German claim that their troops had penetrated Sevastopol's northern defense was not confirmed here, but the Germans nevertheless appeared to be increasing their pressure.

A Sevastopol dispatch to Red Fleet, the navy organ, said the Nazis had thrown fresh reserves into the battle.

The artillery and air bombardments increased in intensity, it was said, burying alive some Red army gun crews.

In one of the German assaults, the ground forces were supported by masses of planes, flying in groups of sixty.

A companion attack 400 miles north of the blood-soaked steppes below Kharkov was declared continuing on a much reduced scale. On the Kalinin front northwest of Moscow, the Soviet communiqué declared that "the enemy was driven out of several positions" and that prisoners and booty were seized.

The later midnight communiqué mentioned only the continued fierce fighting on the Sevastopol front and said that in other sectors there had been no substantial changes in positions. In the Barents Sea Soviet ships were credited with sinking a 15,000-ton enemy transport.

Nazis Claim "Success"

(The Germans claimed "decisive success" at Sevastopol with Gen. Erich von Manstein's troops piercing "the last defense lines" and reaching Sevastopol Bight opposite the city. The high command said the entire northern part of the defenses had fallen and the "capture of the last fort is imminent." Prisoners were said to total 7,585. The Germans claimed also that the Arctic ports of Murmansk and Jokanga were bombed.)

Several thousand bombs were loosed on the deep defenses of Sevastopol two days ago, dispatches said, and mass attacks of tank-supported infantry tried vainly to crack the southern positions. The assaults were renewed yesterday but

"Rubber brought to light in a treasure hunt may be dropped off at a local service station on the way to church Sunday morning or on the way back to work Monday," the council said.

Russian-Turkish Relations Strained By Court Decision in von Papen Case

MOSCOW, June 19 (AP)—The official Soviet news agency Tass tonight declared the conviction by an Ankara court of two Russians on charges of complicity in a bomb plot against Franz von Papen, German ambassador to Turkey, was the result of a Gestapo plot.

Tass asserted the conviction put a strain on Russian-Turkish relations. Moscow newspapers printed Tass's resume of the trial, completed two days ago, under such headlines as: "Disgusting verdict of Ankara court in provocative case of 'attempt' on Papen."

The press found it "shocking" that the two Russians, Georgi Pavlov and Leonid Kornilov, had been sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment on charges of having organized a plot against Franz von Papen, German envoy to Ankara. (Kornilov has been identified as a transport counselor and Soviet commercial representative at Istanbul.)

ROTC Training Now Compulsory In University

New Policy Decided upon by Maryland Board of Regents

BALTIMORE, June 19. (P)—Compulsory ROTC training during a male student's entire career at the University of Maryland was authorized today by the school's board of regents.

Dr. Byrd, saying the change was a war-time measure only, announced he would take immediate steps to put the new policy into effect as soon as possible. Maryland male students were required previously to take two years of military training.

Dr. Byrd added that he believed Maryland was the first state university in the nation to make military training compulsory from freshman year to graduation.

Will Train Future Officers

He said the board, implementing the ROTC change, had authorized him to expand the physical training program at College Park, putting particular emphasis on work which would "toughen up and give more" to the future officers.

This expanded program, he added, would be under the specific direction of an army officer and would be part of the overall physical program being handled by Clark Shaughnessy.

The new policy would increase the strength of the university's ROTC regiment from 1,400 to about 2,500. The ROTC policy revision would be coupled, Byrd said, with changes in the curricula recommended by the war and navy departments to give more training in physics, electronics and mathematics.

"ROTC training for the boy's entire college career," he said, "will give the student a better opportunity to get a commission upon graduation. We want to give them the best possible training as future officers."

Discussed with Army

The matter had been discussed with army officials, he added, and "the war department looks with favor upon the change." He said some time would be needed to make the change complete because only half the male student body is now in school and because more uniforms and equipment must be obtained.

"By next fall the program will be in full swing," he said. The student groups at the university had discussed the change and given full approval, he concluded.

were not so far away from you I would be enjoying this thoroughly," and "you have infused me with energy I never possessed before."

Dr. Darlington's wife, who has sat calmly by his side every day of the trial, powdered her nose while the letters were read.

The letters were dated three or four days apart during the summer months of 1933 to 1936.

During part of this time Dr. Darlington was a chaplain with the national guard, Fort-fourth division, Sea Girt, N. J., and Mrs. Paton wrote to him at camp. "I am glad you have your thin uniform it is so hot. . . I have a new story to tell you which will match some you may have heard there."

The letters were introduced by Theodore Kiendl, counsel for the executors of the will, who also was the first to read letters written by Dr. Darlington to Mrs. Paton.

Several of the main witnesses called Mrs. Paton a strong-willed woman of intelligence, in contrast to the claim that she was of "unsound mind and memory."

Dr. Reginald Burbank, her physician, testified "she was the type of woman we don't see anymore. She was the old-time New York dowager who always had had her own way. She had a will of her own. I never saw it altered or broken and I doubt if it ever was."

or sexually, a man unable to accept restrictions of society. His expressed interest in things intellectual rather than material was a pose.

Cullen, silent and emotionless at the trial, resembled a "punch drunk fighter," Halpern said. "He acted and talked in a daze."

Did Not See Friends

The trio did not see each other at the sentencing. Two hours after appearing in court, Shonbrun and Cullen were on their way to Sing Sing. Miss Webb was sent to Westfield state prison for women at Bedford Hills Monday.

Testimony at the trial showed that Miss Webb lured Mrs. Reich to the hotel Sutton, where Miss Webb and Shonbrun were living as Mr. and Mrs. Ted L'opold, with the sole intent of robbing her. With Miss Webb out of the room, Shonbrun and Cullen strangled Mrs. Reich and cut a five-karat ring from her finger.

Shonbrun accused his uncle, Murray Hirsch, of participating in the slaying. Hirsch was indicted for the crime but he testified for the state and will be tried later.

Clark Gable May Get Commission

Movie Star Wants To Be Officer in Army Air Forces

WASHINGTON, June 19. (P)—The War department announced today that Clark Gable, motion picture star, had applied for a commission in the army air forces.

Gable already has taken his physical examination, and if he is found acceptable, he will be ordered to the officers training school at Miami Beach, Fla., for training and then to the office of the director of individual training in Washington.

Present plans, the department said, are to send Gable to various air force replacement training centers, those specializing in navigation, gunnery, radio, and engineering, to explain the type and importance of air crew jobs.

"It is felt that Gable, through his long interest in flying, as well as his gift as a speaker is well suited for this assignment," the department said.

No decision had been reached on the rank to be given to the motion picture actor, the department added. (The Washington Evening Star reported that Gable would be commissioned as a major if accepted.)

PM Editor Drafted; Reports Wednesday

NEW YORK, June 19. (P)—Ralph M. Ingersoll, editor of the newspaper "PM," has been drafted and ordered to report for induction next Wednesday.

"He won't appeal," the paper said.

Furious Battles

the accurate fire of Red artillery was said to have dispersed the foe.

Tonight a great artillery battle was thundering on the northern approaches to the Crimean citadel while the Russians persisted with counter-attacks in some sectors.

Attack German Planes

The Russian high command ignored the Sevastopol siege and declared "no significant changes took place at the front." The communiqué said seven Red fliers attacked a superior number of German planes, shooting down ten and losing but one in a forty-five-minute dogfight.

Heavy thunderstorms around Kharkov turned the terrain to bog where 1,000 Germans died in the last three days. The fighting there was limited to a fifteen mile sector.

In their main onslaught the Germans used 1,000 planes to soften the defense of Marshal Semeon Timoshenko before the Donets river, Major Gen. Nikolai Zhuravlev wrote in the Moscow News. Skillful maneuvering of Soviet forces which dealt powerful counter-attacks prevented any breach in the lines, he added. He said the very narrowness of the front indicated the Germans lacked the manpower for an all-out assault.

Hungarians in Action

In the Orel sector midway between Moscow and Kharkov, the Germans were reported by Red Star to have sent the sixth and seventh Hungarian infantry division on a punitive expedition against guerrillas. The army newspaper said one of the mercenary battalions mutinied after a futile week of attacks in which 3,000 Hungarians were killed.

While the Russians claimed their forces held firm against all major assaults, the military press pointed out that Germany's two major spring efforts appeared to have brought no important changes in positions but had cost the Nazis heavily in reserves, desperately needed for the summer campaign.

American Planes Attacked by Turks, Germany Declares

NEW YORK, June 19. (P)—The Berlin radio broadcast an Ankara report today that thirteen or fourteen United States warplanes flew over Turkey again last night on their way to the Black Sea coast and that they were fired on by Turkish anti-aircraft batteries.

The Berlin broadcast, heard here by CBS, said:

"According to information from Ankara, American planes have again flown over Turkish territory on their way to the northern coast of the Black Sea."

"There were thirteen or fourteen machines, which were fired at by Turkish anti-aircraft batteries. According to the latest reports the shooting took place in the coast district during the evening of Thursday."

"An official Turkish communiqué has not yet been received."

United States bombers visited the Black Sea region a week ago today and were reported to have bombed the Rumanian oil fields at Ploesti and the German-occupied Russian ports of Nikolayev and Odessa. Four of the raiding craft made forced landings in Turkey.

Russian-Turkish

was testified that von Papen's hearing in one ear was impaired.

The Ankara court sentenced two other defendants, Abraham Simon and Suleyman Sav, naturalized Turks from Yugoslavia, to ten years' imprisonment. They had turned state's evidence, and Tass called these men "provocateurs."

The verdict against the Russians, Tass said, was amazing to "nearly all present in court, with the exception perhaps of representatives of the German embassy and the German Fascist newspapers."

In the verdict, Tass said, "x x x the court merely repeated the unfounded assertions of the prosecutor x x x which revealed the provocative character of the entire sham 'attempt' on Papen's life."

Scores Ankara Court

"Many foreigners who followed this strange case derived the impression that the Ankara court x x x acted on motives which have nothing whatever in common with impartial legal procedure or the materials examined in the case."

"Foreign circles admit that Pavlov and Kornilov x x x succeeded in proving their absolute lack of complicity in the 'attempt' framed by Gestapo agents."

"A number of Turkish journalists and public figures from among those interested in friendly Soviet-Turkish relations expressed to the Tass correspondent their apprehensions that the unjust and unfounded verdict of the Ankara court would cause grave discontent in Soviet public opinion."

Elimination of a number of papers and magazines would cause wide-spread unemployment among printing workers," said Haggerty.

"It also would curtail the public's sources of information about the war, which should be as extensive as possible, if people are to have all the facts about this national emergency."

Further plans in opposition to the increase will be shaped, said Haggerty, at a meeting in Chicago of the National Graphic Arts Emergency Council, with large employers in the printing industry participating from all parts of the country.

Talk of Buying

The Office of Price Administration announced during the day that under the permanent gasoline rationing system to be set up in the east on July 15, every automobile will carry a sticker showing the kind of rationing book held by its driver.

By this method of publicity, the OPA hopes to deter motorists from obtaining or using cards to which they are not entitled.

The OPA may disclose next week whether it will sanction an increase in gasoline prices in the eastern shortage area in order to compensate for increased costs of transporting the fluid overland instead of by tanker. There have been reports that the increase might be three cents a gallon, but OPA said merely that the question was being studied.

Treasury Offers New Tax Proposal Plan To Withhold Part of Employees Wages Advanced

By DONALD A. YOUNG

WASHINGTON, June 19. (P)—A new treasury proposal for collecting individual income taxes at the source was presented to the House Ways and Means committee today and members said the chances were excellent that it would be approved.

It contemplates that beginning January 1 employers would withhold from employees' paychecks ten per cent of the amount above an allowance for basic exemptions. Half the amount withheld in 1943 would be credited against the payments due on this year's taxes, and half against 1943 taxes due March 15, 1944.

Randolph Paul, tax adviser to Secretary Morgenthau, explained the plan this way in a statement to the committee:

Here's Latest Plan

"The taxpayer would be permitted to credit against his March 15, 1943, installment of 1942 taxes, half of the amounts withheld at source during January and February, 1943; against his June 15 installment, half of the amounts withheld during March, April and May; against his Sept. 15 installment, half of the amounts withheld during June, July and August; and against his December 15 installment, half of the amounts withheld during September, October and November.

Credit for 1944

"Under this plan, slightly more than half of the total amount withheld at source during 1943 would be available in March, 1944, as a credit against 1943 income tax liabilities. In this way, the transition to collection at source would be spread over the two years, 1943 and 1944."

Earlier, the committee reiterated its decision to impose a ninety-four per cent excess profits tax on corporations but appeared hopelessly divided on the question of a post-war refund to soften the blow of such a high rate.

BALTIMORE, June 19. (P)—Fire and a series of explosions damaged a varnish plant in southwest Baltimore today and routed several hundred persons from adjacent buildings.

No one was injured.

Albert A. Shuger, executive of the Baltimore Paint and Color Works, Inc., said a kettle of varnish tipped over, ran toward an open flame, caught fire and set off a series of containers holding chemicals.

Shuger estimated damages at between $10,000 and $15,000 and said about eighty per cent of the plant's work was on government contracts, which would be held up indefinitely.

During the fire, which was confined to a one-story brick and metal building, the top of a 4,000-gallon tank was blown off and fell on the side of an automobile a block away. None of the three occupants was hurt.

Dense smoke from the burning building forced employees out of two factories and a laundry nearby.

Special police details were necessary to handle the several thousand persons who crowded the streets around the blazing building.

Printers To Fight Postal Rate Boost

MINNEAPOLIS, June 19. (P)—Plans for a finish fight against proposed postal rate increases that could cost newspapers and magazines an estimated $77,000,000 a year highlighted the final session today of board of governors of International Allied Printing Trades Association.

John B. Haggerty, president of the board and of International Brotherhood of Bookbinders, said protests would be filed with Congress.

"Elimination of a number of papers and magazines would cause wide-spread unemployment among printing workers," said Haggerty.

"It also would curtail the public's sources of information about the war, which should be as extensive as possible, if people are to have all the facts about this national emergency."

Further plans in opposition to the increase will be shaped, said Haggerty, at a meeting in Chicago of the National Graphic Arts Emergency Council, with large employers in the printing industry participating from all parts of the country.

Local Successes

It is said this landing was made north of Tachow Bay, which is about eighty-five miles south of Nipingo, and the invaders seized and applied the torch to the town of Shao-shungshih.

This Chekiang thrust may be the beginning of a new drive to occupy southeastern Chekiang, which contains the big port of Wenchow and the city of Lishui. The latter has been bombed frequently of late by the Japanese in the belief that it might provide a base for air raids upon Japan.

The communiqué listed 1,150 Japanese killed by Chinese troops who were credited with capture of several Chekiang provinces towns taken by the invader in an earlier drive into Chekiang from Kiangsi.

Germans Boasted They Sank Ship Before They Did

Apparently Had Information about Large U. S. Merchantman

AN EAST COAST PORT, June 19. (P)—A Berlin propaganda broadcast boasted sinking their big ship two days before the actual attack came, crewmen from a large American-owned merchantman flying the Panamanian flag said on reaching this port.

Those aboard the ship said circumstances caused them to believe that it was the definitely-sought target of a submarine which received orders from Berlin. Five of the sixty persons aboard the vessel are missing.

Six Seamen Lost

Six seamen were lost when another ship, a medium-sized American vessel, was sunk on June 10, five days after the attack on the merchantman. News of the sinkings was released today by the navy.

The undersea raider that attacked the merchantman was described by Fred Lewis, chief engineer of Jersey City, N. J., as "so big it looked like the Queen Mary." He added that "by the glare of our burning ship it appeared 300 or more feet long."

The Axis submarine launched its attack June 5 near a Caribbean island. Lewis said he thought the undersea raider probably had trailed the vessel for hours.

Rescued by Gunboat

A gunboat of a belligerent West Indian republic rescued most of the crew, including eight navy gunners.

There was no warning before two torpedoes blasted the other ship and sent it to the bottom in twenty minutes. Several of the thirty-eight survivors were injured, but all reached a Cuban port after drifting in lifeboats for twelve hours.

"We never saw the submarine, either before or after the attack," said Captain Brazier B. Calaway of Ganado, Tex.

Conservation Agents Threatened by Alleged Crab Pot Operators

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 19. (P)—Edwin Warfield, Jr., State Board of Natural Resources chairman, reported today an attempt had been made to kill or intimidate conservation officers who have been combating Chesapeake Bay for illegal crab pots.

He said a shot gun, attached to an illegal crabpot, discharged when Inspector John Smith pulled the device from the bay near Hoper's Island June 4.

Warfield explained that crab pots, outlawed by the last legislature, have been marked by buoys attached to the pots by a line. When Smith raised the crab pot to the surface, the shotgun discharged, Warfield said.

Conservation officials, who turned the shotgun over to state police, have been trying to find the owner of the crab pot. Warfield said the investigation would be "pursued vigorously."

He said he was convinced the gun had been placed on the crab pot to frighten inspectors who have been confiscating the pots.

Frederick May Ban Sunday Dancing

FREDERICK, June 19. (P)—A proposal to forbid Sunday dancing in restaurants and public places has been placed before the Frederick council at the request of the police department.

City Attorney Edward J. Smith said he had been asked to draft the ordinance as the result of a raid early last Sunday in a Frederick night club.

The council took no action, although devoting some discussion to means of keeping order under the present ordinance forbidding maintenance of disorderly places.

Draftee Gets Partial Release from Army

BALTIMORE, June 19. (P)—Jacob Lee Sorter, 26-year-old draftee who sought release from the army through Habeas Corpus proceedings filed in Federal Court, has been placed in the organized reserves after a private investigation.

Gen. Milton A. Reckord said today, Gen. Reckord, Third Corps area commander, said the army's inquiry in Sorter's case had shown all of the draftee's statements to be true.

If Sorter had taken his appeal before the proper military authorities in the beginning, the officer said, court proceedings would not have been necessary.

Sorter contended that he should have been classified 3-A because of a dependent mother and stated in his Habeas Corpus petition that he had served six years in the army and about eight months in the coast guard. He said he had been honorably discharged to take a civilian position.

His mother is an invalid in a nursing home in Lebanon, O., Sorter said.

Pope Reported Ill

VATICAN CITY, June 19. (P)—Pope Pius XII was reported suffering tonight from feverish bronchial catarrh and all audiences have been cancelled until next week.

Vatican circles said there was no cause for anxiety and that the Pope's illness was caused partly by the strain of his numerous audiences.

SERGEANT HERO BECOMES A MAJOR

Sergeant Sam Woodfill of Cincinnati, O., called by General John Pershing the "outstanding American soldier" of World War I, is in the Army again — this time as a major. Woodfill is shown above at right being inducted into the service by Lieut. Col. L. Heyman at Fort Thomas, Ky. Woodfill is credited with having killed 19 German soldiers, capturing three. He was honored by six nations.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Contrasted with adverse war developments in the Mediterranean and western Atlantic theaters as the first anniversary of Hitler's attack on Russia rolls around, the Pacific front shows heartening improvement, except in China.

Whatever the purpose of Japanese naval forays in the north Pacific, Nipponese losses constitute a definite dent in enemy striking power. A 10-to-1 ratio as compared to American casualties is not an exaggerated estimate.

It is probably much greater in fact, with nearly three score enemy combat and cargo craft sunk or put out of action in the Coral Sea, Midway and Aleutians. Japan can show only a precarious footing in the western Aleutians on the profit side of the grim ledger.

Conference Is Mystery

The strategic value of that Japanese toehold is too negligible in comparison to its cost to figure very importantly in the renewed Roosevelt-Churchill conferences. It was something of more consequence in the war picture that brought the British prime minister to this country. There has been much speculation that he and Mr. Roosevelt would discuss second front operations in Europe to aid Russia, or new moves to bolster the shaken defenses of Egypt.

There is another possibility. This week-end, embracing the night of June 21-22, is not only the German-Russian war anniversary. It is the official opening of summer, of the summer in which Hitler has pledged himself to knock Russia out of the war. Germany's claims that it has scored "decisive" successes in the Sevastopol area and has routed a "collapsed" British army in Libya have some basis, even if utterly exaggerated.

What is Hitler Doing?
Hitler obviously is setting the propaganda stage at home for some purpose, presumably for an announcement that his 1943 victory drive is now rolling. This week-end must be fraught with special significance to him and to his opponents.

It is not illogical that Churchill deemed it prudent to bridge the time and distance gap between the British and American nerve centers of United Nations' war effort in anticipation of weekend developments that would call for instant Allied decisions. The choice of ways and means to meet a supreme Nazi effort may be forced upon the conferees within days or hours at most.

Every moment saved in making that choice promptly effective, once Hitler's purposes are clear, would be of vital value. He has had up to now always benefited from his one-man command in crises. His Allied opponents were compelled to take long distance council with each other and endure hampering delays in action.

With Roosevelt and Churchill at elbow touch with each other, that delay has been largely eliminated. Their joint word is final so far as American and British armed forces are concerned, when it comes to action.

Even should this June week-end see no fresh breaking of the storm of Nazi attack, the Roosevelt-Churchill personal contacts must be helpful in the prosecution of the war.

Willkie Confers With G.O.P. Leaders

WASHINGTON, June 19. (P)—Wendell L. Willkie, the 1940 Republican presidential nominee, discussed party affairs informally today with a group of about twenty minority senators and House Republican Leader Joseph Martin at a luncheon in the capitol.

The meeting, attended by several senators who strongly opposed Willkie's foreign policy views in the past, was described to reporters later by Willkie as "harmonious."

Willkie said he was seated between Senator Norris, a public power advocate who has been critical of Willkie in the past, and Senator Nye, (R-Md.), who, before Pearl Harbor, differed with Willkie on the issue of American intervention in the war.

Senate Minority Leader McNary, the 1940 vice presidential nominee, arranged the luncheon.

Judge Says Axis Subs Get Signals from New Jersey Hotels

ASBURY PARK, N. J., June 19. (P)—Enemy agents are flashing signals to Axis submarines from hotel windows in Atlantic coast resorts, New Jersey's disabled veterans of World War I were told today by County Judge Thomas Siddall, Atlantic City Defense Council chairman.

Siddall said he had seen the signals reflected from hotels in Atlantic City and other shore resorts. He spoke at the twenty-third annual convention of the New Jersey Department, Disabled American Veterans.

Recent false rumors of test blackouts in New Jersey were blamed by Siddall on subversive elements he said were attempting to confuse the people.

Associated Press Wins $3,780 Judgement

LOS ANGELES, June 19. (P)—The Associated Press won a $3,780 judgment today in United States district court against Dan W. Emmett, publisher of the Oxnard, Calif., Press-Courier, which sought to withdraw from the news-gathering organization without giving two years' notice required by the organization's by-laws.

The judgment represented 104 weeks' assessments at the rate being paid by Emmett in May, 1940, when he ceased using the Associated Press news service and declined to pay the weekly assessment.

In an oral opinion, Judge Leon R. Yankwich held that Emmett's election to membership and his agreement to be bound by the association's by-laws constituted a legal contract. He also ruled that the provision requiring a member to pay 104 weeks' assessment in a lump sum upon breaching the contract was a reasonable provision for liquidated damages and did not constitute a penalty which would be unenforceable.

BALTIMORE, June 19. (P)—A corps of volunteers will make visits to every retail store in Maryland to help with the posting of price ceilings, Leo H. McCormick, state OPA director, said today.

Colorado Reports Tourist Business Is Showing Gains

Mar., from Eastern States Spending Summer in Big Parks

By LOUDON KELLY

DENVER, June 19. (P)—One great American product that so far has escaped freeing is the automobile tourist who likes to drive places and see new sights.

Despite tire shortages, Colorado's tourist industry, a $120,000,000 business last year, is thriving in this first summer of America at war.

The threat of nationwide gasoline rationing seemingly has served as a spur to offset a cautious desire of the traveling public to conserve tires. Tourists are streaming out here in greater numbers for this early in the season than in any previous year in a decade.

National Parks Crowded

Estes Park, Rocky Mountain National Park and the Pikes Peak section, three of the most popular gathering places for visitors, have noted this trend.

There is no authoritative check, however, on just how many sight-seers are coming by car.

Coloradans even have seen automobiles from the gas-rationed Atlantic seaboard states. One Washington, D. C., tourist explained how he did it. He showed a ration card which had a number of spaces, each good for three gallons.

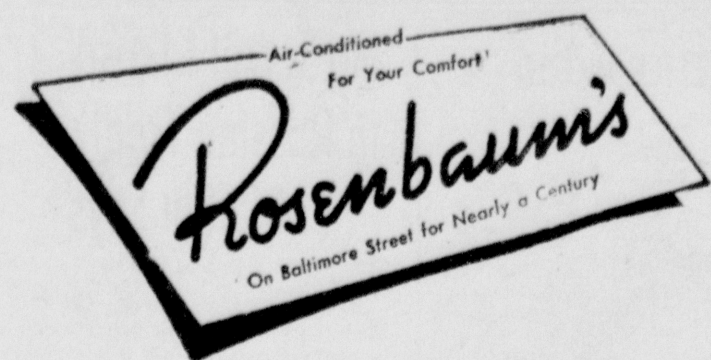

Getting Gas Easy
"I simply got three gallons at one filling station, got my car punched, drove to another and got three more," he said, "and kept doing this until I have enough to get far enough west where there were no restrictions."

A Painted Post, N. Y., visitor said he lives only forty miles inside the restricted zone and his three gallons were enough to get him to where he could say, "Fill 'er up," and mean it.

If it's any consolation to the tourist burning up rubber to look at the scenery, there are plenty of saddle horses to hire when he gets here.

Abandonment of Fairs Is Going to an Extreme

OF COURSE we are at war and we must all do things and do without things to which we are accustomed in normal times, but while official Washington in some instances does not seem to realize the fact in other instances it seems to go to puzzling extremes.

The reported request by Joseph B. Eastman, defense transportation director, that all state and county fairs be deferred for the duration of the war seems to fall within the latter category. There are some reasons for the Eastman request, which looks to transportation conservation and anything to that end is commendable if it is at all reasonable and necessary, but it would appear that the reasons for continuing these annual institutions outweigh the Eastman objective to a considerable extent.

For one thing, as has been pointed out by officials of the Cumberland Fair Association, suspension of the fairs would entail a rather large loss of needed state and federal revenues. This is a factor that should weigh rather heavily in the balance in view of the scraping and scratching and scheming that has been going on in Washington in efforts to raise moneys for the war chest.

But there are other reasons that deserve careful consideration. It should not be taken for granted that these annual fairs are merely frivolous and useless gatherings. They embrace educational, social, economic, recreational and scientific factors, which are of importance at a time when the maintenance of a high public morale is admittedly of much consequence. The knowledge to be gained from the exhibits and the interchange of ideas, the rivalries which make for better production in craftsmanship, farm crops, animal husbandry and the like, the pleasurable social contacts, the mental refreshment and relaxation all serve to buoy the spirit from the depths of depression into which the people are always placed by the prosecution of war and the deprivations made necessary by it.

All these factors are worth something. It would seem, in time of war as they are admittedly worth much in time of peace and are then encouraged. A fair such as is held here for a two-weeks' stretch ought not occasion such a dislocation of transportation nor such a lack of war conservation as to be really serious. Besides, the fairs come only once in a long year.

Johnston's War Reports A Brilliant Achievement

IT SEEMS hardly necessary for the News to direct the attention of its readers to the series of stories by Stanley Johnston, of the Chicago Tribune, which were made available to the entire newspaper membership of the Associated Press and which have been published in the News from day to day.

This is for the reason that readers generally have been reading these reports avidly; and there is good reason for their interest in them because they are among the very best that have come out of the battles in the Pacific. Johnston was in the thick of the Battle of the Coral Sea, having been aboard the doomed Lexington and among the survivors of that inferno through which he came with his precious notes intact.

The Johnston stories are vivid in their portrayal, dynamic in their terse construction and revealing in details. In all they represent a brilliant example of factual reporting in exciting life-and-death circumstances. When the war is over these reports will have proved to be historical epics of incalculable value in its recordation. Johnston deserves praise for his daring heroism, which has matched our brave fighters in these far-distant waters, and his devotion to duty, as does the Chicago Tribune for its enterprise in having a man of his caliber on the job in the very thick of it all, and in sharing it with the general public.

Prescriptions Just Can't Be Simplified

THE PRACTICE of writing medical prescriptions in Latin took a kicking around at the convention of the American Medical Association in Atlantic City, when Dr. Wallace M. Yater delivered an address to the section on experimental medicine and therapeutics, of which he was chairman.

Prescriptions, he said, should be written in English. The patient should know what he is getting. The psychological value of mystifying him is not great, and for that matter the commonly used chemical names are sufficiently mystifying.

The argument that the chemical names are mystifying enough should have a certain attractiveness to any person, not trained in chemistry, who tries to keep abreast of the new medicines being discovered these days.

Take the sulfonamide group of drugs, or the sulphonamide, if the British spelling is preferred. These sulfa names mean well when they start out; they begin with the prefix sulfa or sulfo. But all of a sudden they are off on a crazy, meandering course that exhausts the mind as well as the alphabet. What is a man untrained in science going to do about a word like sulfamylguanidine?

The need for using Latin in prescriptions appears to have been rendered useless by the development of the new derivatives of all kinds. Even if the prescriptions are written in English now, people will still find themselves in a cerebral whirl if they try to find out what they are taking. And besides, there still is the physician's handwriting with which to contend.

A Japanese Policy Meriting Applause

CIVILIZED PEOPLE heartily disapprove of almost everything the government of Japan does, but there's one Tokyo policy of which they just as heartily approve. That's the custom of soft-soaping the people—construing every engagement in which Japanese armed forces take part as a victory.

The Battle of Midway offers an example of how this Tokyo habit works out in practice. Military and naval experts say that battle was the greatest naval defeat suffered by Japan in a thousand years of history. But what did the Japanese government tell the Japanese people? Simply that the Battle of Midway had carried the war to America's front door and was an important step toward freeing Japanese waters from the menace of American submarines.

The result of this misinformation, swallowed whole by the Japanese public, was that shipping shares on the Tokyo exchange soared to new high levels. It's just a Nipponese version of the South Sea Bubble. It's easy to see what will happen if the truth of the Battle of Midway ever gets out. A few more Japanese "victories" like that and there will be no Tokyo exchange.

The Japanese government's policy of misinforming its people is one Americans can applaud with enthusiasm. It begins to resemble a weapon with which Japan is preparing to commit financial hara kiri.

He Still Carries The Major Load

WHILE in recent generations of western civilization father has not been grounded so deeply in sentiment as mother, there is a trend which indicates the sire may be catching up with the distaff side of the family in general esteem.

Celebration of Mother's day in America antedated the filip to father, which will be generally observed June 21, by a matter of years. Nevertheless the tendency is to make as much of one as the other in rising acquiescence to the fact that the old man, in the present economic and social set-up, has his points.

Immemorially the male has been the winner of the family provender. That has been true since the dim day when he fared forth from his cave with flint-tipped club to bash in the head of such roving steaks and chops as he could meet and conquer.

Today the provisioning end of the family obligation is much more involved and nerve-racking. Indeed the task is of such proportions that the woman has come more and more to be helpmeet in the marts as well as in the home.

Probably the American family is more an integrated unit than it has been since the days when pioneers challenged the wilderness. Both father and mother are in the harness and working with a will. But mostly it is father who carries the load as the American world wags. And on Sunday the nation will pay him tribute with a will that betokens recognition of a task well done.

A dispatch says the Germans on the Russian front are now complaining about the warm weather there. Our guess is that it is not the heat so much as the humidity.

You Can Light a Torch!

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I know a fine brave woman who sometimes says that few of us can do great things in this world—but that almost anybody can light a few torches!

That's what she does. She's had joy and struggle in her life and plenty of trouble. But though she is sometimes unhappy and close to tears, she never fusses and nobody ever heard her say that life is a trap and living is a failure. With her courage she lights torches for other people.

She has lit many of those torches in her life—warm, burning torches that light the way for others and that never burn out.

If a man faces terrible danger and is afraid but does not cry for mercy and run away, he lights a torch.

If a woman goes down into the darkness of terrible pain with a smile that illumines the gloom that is all around her, surely SHE lights a torch.

If a man and woman go through great trouble together and help and comfort each other and keep their love unbroken by the evil that assaults them, they have lit a torch.

If a writer writes something that is true and good and strong, he lights a torch.

If a singer sings one song perfectly, that's a torch.

If a man climbs to great success and is not made arrogant and selfish by his triumph, that's a torch.

If he suffers a great loss and is not embittered—

If he is betrayed and does not think all men are betrayers—

Surely, once more, he lights a torch.

A torch is the thing we do that helps others. It is the one right and perfect achievement that is possible in every life. The triumph that any man—any woman—may claim for himself. . . In pride, grief, agony or fear, all is not lost as long as you can light a torch!

Gunning for Nelson Seen in Campaign Against Dollar Men

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The committees of Congress have reached diametrically opposite conclusions about the use of dollar-a-year men in government.

The House Military Affairs committee, through a sub-committee headed by Representative Faddis, Democrat, says the dollar-a-year men have performed yeoman service, that they are men of unquestioned integrity and patriotism and that those who are not are exceptions to the general rule.

The Senate committee investigating the national defense program, headed by Senator Truman, of Missouri, Democrat, says the dollar-a-year men are men of unquestioned capacity and "the overwhelming number are possessed of patriotism and integrity" but they should not be allowed to have a voice in any decisions or determinations affecting the thing they know most about, namely their own industries. The reason given is that "they are unable to divorce themselves from their subconscious gravitation to their own industries."

Not Easily Discarded

This is merely another way of saying that the things which the dollar-a-year men have learned about industrial operations are not easily discarded by them any more than experience and facts can be discarded by those in science or the law or in engineering who have had years of familiarity with such facts.

Why, therefore, is it urged that these dollar-a-year men should give up their convictions? What is it about the dollar-a-year men that is wrong if their integrity and patriotism are unquestioned? Is it possible that these men are not ready to surrender to the collectivist concept of the American social system? Are they being penalized because they will not allow the war program to be used for socialist purposes and experiments, for failing to consent to the wholesale wreckage of the industries which they know, when they see no alternative plans emanating from government to do the war job efficiently?

Clue Is Seen

Maybe there is somewhere a clue to the campaign of defamation which has been going on for some time against the dollar-a-year men, a campaign which has caused Donald Nelson, chief of the War Production Board, to cry out publicly in protest against what he considers a traffic effort to weaken the personnel and management of vital work of war production.

Possibly the clue for the anti-dollar-a-year men campaign can be located in the words of the Senate committee report itself, which reveals that labor union leaders may be anxious to discredit the dollar-a-year men so that labor chiefs can acquire more and more power in war production and thus prepare for usurpation of management functions, especially after the war. Here is an interesting passage in the senate committee report, which says in part:

"The committee is of the opinion that there exists in this country administrative resources which have not yet been adequately tapped by the War Production Board. . . .

"The Labor division of the War Production Board and the Labor Advisory committees have consistently taken advanced positions in advocacy of radical curtailment of civilian industry.

It certainly is strange that, despite all this sniping at industrial executives and the petty politics of selfish groups, America is nevertheless accomplishing wonders on the production front—and much of it is due to the foundations laid by William S. Knudsen and the dollar-a-year men he selected.

Not That Kind Of Unity

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligence

Wendell Willkie was on firm ground, this newspaper feels, in his refusal to become a coalition candidate for Governor of New York. The proposal had been advanced that Willkie be agreed upon by all parties in order that the State would be spared "a contested election in war time." Mr. Willkie, squelching the movement before it got well under way, said it would be impossible of accomplishment and "unwise if it could be brought about."

Just why there should be no contested election in war time passes our understanding. Just because certain men or certain parties happen to be in office it does not follow that they should be continued in office because a war is going on. Nor does it follow that the fighting out of political issues, the advancement of political principles means a cramping of the war effort.

We want national unity, to be sure. But if it must be purchased at the price of political stagnation, it comes too high.

THE HONEY BEE TRIES OUT THE WALLACE PLAN FOR A BETTER WORLD

Elmer Davis Has the Same Chance as Nelson To Clean House, Sullivan Says

By MARK SULLIVAN

Conditions are favorable for success of the new Office of War Information, and its head, Mr. Elmer Davis, newspaper and radio man, with whom Mr. Davis will deal, respect him for his career; those who know him personally, like him for his unpretentiousness, his Indiana homeliness, and his humor. A large portion of the public, who for some three years have listened to Mr. Davis's broadcasts of news over the radio, have grasped and liked his plainness and directness.

One hears it said that Mr. Davis is on a "hot spot"—because he has been drafted to take hold of a situation which is by nature difficult, and which in the past has not been handled satisfactorily. But this very condition may make for success. Mr. Davis comes forward by much the same process as Mr. Donald Nelson last January. In war production, there had been board after board, head after head, none with enough authority, or otherwise handicapped. After some two years of that, President Roosevelt, yielding to the pressure of intensified need after we got into the war, appointed Mr. Nelson, and conferred on him the quantity of power necessary for success. At first, Mr. Nelson, like any new man in a high place, was watched, intently, to some extent critically. After six months he is now taken for granted as successful. As with Mr. Nelson, so now with Mr. Davis—the first few weeks are the critical period.

Two Handicaps

Mr. Davis has two serious handicaps, neither of them any fault of his. One is the whole matter of government publicity—information services, press agents, everything they call themselves—is rather seriously discredited.

In saying this, it is necessary to make a qualification. Some of the information services more recently set up, and having to do with the war, have drawn to Washington writers and others of high ability and fine zeal, their motives deeply patriotic and wholly unselfish. Yet these recent war information agencies have not been successful—the proof of that is that they are now superseded.

About the other publicity agencies, the ones that have been here several years, it is not possible to make a generalization. Some of the persons who man them are able and conscientious. Some of the work they do is useful. But it is a fair summary of Washington opinion to say that these publicity services as a whole (admitting some exceptions) are looked upon with cynicism.

Mass an Indictment

When the new alphabetical agencies began to be set up, eight or nine years ago, there were included in most of them elaborate agencies for disseminating what might be called information if you approve it—or propaganda if you have distaste for it and the system that produces it. The mere mass of it is its own indictment. The total cost of all the government information and publicity agencies is between $27,000,000 and $28,000,000. In one department alone, Agriculture (as expanded with Triple-A and other alphabetical agencies) 667 persons are engaged in press.

radio and motion-picture publicity—at a cost of $823,700.

How much of all this is legitimate and useful, how much waste or worse, is a matter of judgment. Probably Mr. Davis, as experienced newspaper man, might say that with any competent managing editor, with an appropriation of half a million dollars for his staff, could do all the publicity work that is necessary and useful—out of what is being done by the government at an expense of $27,000,000 to $28,000,000.

Can Curtail or Abolish

This situation, apparently, Mr. Davis has power to remedy. In the executive order by President Roosevelt, which is Mr. Davis's charter of powers, is included this:

"Review, clear and approve all proposed radio and motion picture programs sponsored by federal departments and agencies. . . . The director (Mr. Davis) may require the curtailment or elimination of any federal information service, program or release which he deems to be wasteful or not directly related to the prosecution of the war effort."

If Mr. Davis exercises this power, he will get a strong momentum in public confidence. If he does not do it, probably it will be done anyhow by Congress.

There is another action that would help Mr. Davis to a good start. He can give out, now, promptly, the details of the losses we suffered in the initial Japanese attack at Pearl Harbor and the Philippines, December 7. The information might not do the country any special good. But giving it out would do great good to Mr. Davis. It would give him a reputation for candor—and that is the best asset he can have.

No Withholding Reason Now

The early reason for withholding the information about Pearl Harbor—that it might give aid to the enemy—must by now have disappeared. Information about a much later battle, the one in the Coral Sea in May, has already been given out. The information about Pearl Harbor and the Philippines has been promised to the public. The president, in his address to the country December 9th, asking the public not to believe the rumors then afloat, said:

"This government will put its trust in the stamina of the American people, and will give the facts to the public as soon as two conditions have been fulfilled: First, that the information has been definitely and officially confirmed; and, second, that the release of the information at the time it is received will not prove valuable to the enemy directly or indirectly. . . ."

No Secret Clause In Russian Treaty, Paul Mallon Says

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Current suspicions that the British granted a secret clause in their treaty with Russia, promising Stalin all the territory he wanted, cannot be true in view of the inside manner in which the treaty developed.

The still mysterious visit of Lord Beaverbrook to Washington two months ago was concerned with this matter. He came over to sound Mr. Roosevelt on the Soviet proposition.

His soundings must have been faulty, for he returned to London with the mistaken notion that Mr. Roosevelt would accept such a grant of territory.

When Foreign Commissar Molotov arrived in London a treaty was actually drawn by the British providing for such a post-war settlement.

Officially Corrected

But when news of it reached Washington, the mistake of Beaverbrook was officially corrected. This government put its foot down firmly against making any advance territorial commitments of any kind. It could not do otherwise.

The British thereupon tore up the territorial draft, and offered the Russians instead the twenty-year mutual defense pact which Molotov was glad to negotiate.

This unofficial explanation of the matter coincides fully with the official statement of Anthony Eden to Parliament, and the White Paper issued by the British, both of which were flat, airtight denials that the treaty meant more than it said.

Jap Attack on Russia Seen

The Chinese thing Jap seizure of some of our Aleutian islands forecasts a Jap attack on Russia. Recent Chungking advices assume that the Japs wanted to be able to intercept any American bomber aid or trans-Pacific surface aid to Russia. That is about the only military good the Japs could get out of these islands.

No one here professes to know what the acrobatic statesmen of Japan will try next. But with their sea striking force of aircraft carriers gone, there seems nothing for them to do except to sink their teeth deeper into China and try a land attack on the Reds.

WPB To Be Reorganized

The War Production Board has done its work so well, it is working itself out of business. Another reorganization is in the making. In about thirty days, Chairman Nelson will issue a directive which will take cognizance of the changed functions, coming about gradually now as plants have been completed, changed over, contracts let, etc.

Both the Production and Purchasing divisions have men working in the army and navy departments already and their functions will be gradually shifted over. The Industrial Operations division will be shaken down as there seems to be no need for refrigerator, washing machine committee and the like.

The whole organization will assume the character of an advisory agency rather than an administrative bureau.

Mr. Nelson, the man who did the job, apparently intends to remain in control, although it has never been officially agreed by the War and Navy departments that his executive order gave him power over them.

The single-headed centralized authority certainly straightened out the mess in production with such outstanding success as to invite the adoption of a similar system for the rubber and gas mess, possibly under Mr. Nelson.

Primaries Puzzling

Congressmen, always trying to read political trends, are having some difficulty interpreting the primaries this far.

A strong supporter of FDR's foreign policy (Luther Patrick) was defeated by Democrats in Alabama, while a Maine Republican isolationist (Rep. James Oliver) was defeated by Republicans there.

Iowa Republicans defeated a Willkie man, and Illinois Republicans renominated an isolationist ("Curley" Brooks) who wisely said "all foreign policy controversy is dead since Pearl Harbor."

But an overwhelming majority of those who have faced the primaries so far have been renominated.

Ikkes Corrects Mistakes

Petroleum Co-ordinator and Interior Secretary Ikkes has begun in a modest way to straighten out his career. In a speech to the Motor Freight Association, June 11, he recalled with horror that he had made a speech to the American Automobile Association in 1933, saying:

"I have promised some day to give myself the pleasure of driving down a truck-infested road in the biggest armored tank that I can find and bumping those pests off the road."

He apologized, saying he did not know how he could have been so wrong as to underestimate the value of motor transport. Earlier he even made a speech defending Congress.

Mr. Ikkes is apparently working his way back to correct every speech he ever made up to these last two. If he goes through with it he will wind up on the right side of every question.

Miss Jane Luman To Become Bride of Eugene F. Rogers

Wedding Is Scheduled Today at Emmanuel Episcopal Church

Miss Jane Guthrie Luman, daughter of Mrs. Mary Jamieson Luman, 234 Fayette street and the late Ralph M. Luman, will become the bride of Eugene F. Rogers, son of Prof. and Mrs. Harold Prantz Rogers, Fairmont, W. Va., today.

The ceremony will be performed at 10 a. m. in Emmanuel Episcopal church, Washington street, with the Rev. David Cartwright Clark, rector, officiating.

Miss Harriet Rogers, Fairmont, sister of the bridegroom, will be maid of honor and Miss Luman's only attendant. Harold J. McNally, Cumberland, will serve as Mr. Rogers' best man.

John S. Gridley will play the wedding music and the prelude.

The bride, who will be given in marriage by her brother, Harry Luman, Frostburg, will wear a street length dress of white silk jersey, with white accessories and a bridal corsage.

The maid of honor's gown will be of seaford green, with which she will wear a white off the face sweetheart hat and a corsage of yellow daisies and yellow roses.

Mrs. Luman has chosen a dark blue sheer dress for her daughter's wedding. With this she will wear a French felt picture hat of the same shade and a corsage of gardenias.

Mrs. Rogers' costume will be of powder blue with black and white accessories and she will wear a corsage of gardenias.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Allegheny high school, and Ursuline business school. She is prominent in musical circles, being a member of the First Presbyterian church choir and several musical clubs.

She was also a member of the Town Hall Players, and a member of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company office staff.

Mr. Rogers is a graduate of State Teachers college, Fairmont, and the West Virginia university, Morgantown. He is a member of Delta Tau Delta fraternity and is associated with the Celanese Corporation of America as chemist.

Following the ceremony a wedding reception will be held for members of the immediate families and relatives at the home of the bride's mother, which will be decorated with assorted flowers for the occasion.

The annual church picnic will be held June 23 in Constitution park, with John Park as general chairman.

Games of all sorts will be arranged according to age groups, and will be held under supervision. They will include a penit scramble, races and a balloon bursting contest.

The highlight will be a soft-ball game between the married and single men.

Due to war conditions there will not be a chartered bus. Members will meet at the park.

Winners Are Announced In Women's Golf Meet

Mrs. Royce Hodges and Mrs. Somerville Nicholson registered victories yesterday in the women's spring golf tournament being staged at the Cumberland Country Club.

Mrs. Hodges defeated Mrs. Josephine Mackey, 4 and 2, in the first bracket of the first flight while in the third bracket, Mrs. Somerville Nicholson bested Mrs. Gordon Bowie, two up, in a second-round contest.

Some Adhesions in Abdomen Are Congenital, Others Are Acquired

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I do not believe we hear as much about adhesions in the abdomen as we used to because fashions of the abdomen and lines the inside of the abdominal wall is very apt to form these bands of tissue.

There are two kinds of abdominal adhesions: One which is congenital or develops naturally in an individual with the development of the body, and the other which is acquired and follows injury or a surgical operation.

It is very tempting to ascribe all sorts of symptoms to adhesions and this was frequently done until a Boston physician made an elaborate study to show what the normal incidence of adhesion is. He found that seven women out of every ten and eight men out of every ten had some kind of adhesions in the abdomen.

Only a very small proportion of these people complained of any abdominal trouble and when they did, very few of them complained in the same way. For instance, the largest number of congenital adhesions is found in the transverse part of the large intestine. To some people this explained the cause of constipation and auto-intoxication and all the rest of the mumbo-jumbo. But the trouble with this explanation was that people who had the worst adhesions were the people who were freest from constipation and auto-intoxication.

Natural Adhesions

As age advances, more and more adhesions occur in the abdomen whether an operation is performed or not. These natural adhesions, which involve not only the large bowel but also the gallbladder, the appendix and the liver, can hardly ever be said to be responsible for any symptoms in these organs.

They are relatively simple and run true to form, lacking variety in type.

It was once the fashion, as I have said, to ascribe all sorts of dire sickness to these adhesions. Surgeons waded in and cut them out and sewed them over and named bands and kinks after themselves and had a lovely time; it was a bloody period in surgical history.

The only time I ever saw a surgeon faint in an operating room was when a very nice fellow from Boston went with me to the clinic of a celebrated London surgeon. He said after he was revived, he just couldn't help feeling sorry for those innocent people. Surgeons have, however, learned some restraint about these fields.

The acquired adhesions following a surgical operation are very complex and hardly any two of them are exactly the same. Sometimes they can cause a great deal of trouble in the way of a chronic abdominal pain and even acute intestinal obstruction. Modern surgery, however, has developed means to reduce the possibility of the formation of these adhesions so that we are likely to hear less and less about them.

Questions and Answers

E. D.: Will x-ray show ulcers or cancer of the stomach? Will it also show the intestines and tell what may be the cause of constipation and gas in these regions?

Answer: Yes.

C. M. H.: Is a mixture of lemon juice and soda water considered a good condition? What is the difference in the effect upon the system if it is taken while effervescent or after effervescing? What chemical change, if any, takes place in the solution itself after effervescence has stopped?

Answer: The term, "a good condition," is a little indefinite. I don't quite know what you mean. Lemon juice and soda water tend to flush the kidneys and it is often a help to digestion. There is no chemical change that occurs after effervescence has stopped. The effect of the effervescence is largely to make any drink more palatable and make it absorb somewhat more rapidly. The only thing that escapes is carbon dioxide gas.

Track, Golf and Turf Events Will Be Reported Today by Networks

Summer Series by Cleveland Orchestra Will Be Started Tonight

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
NEW YORK, June 19—A track meet, a golf tournament and some horse racing should give the sports listeners a pretty full matinee session on the networks Saturday. Here are the items and other details on the docket:

National A. A. U. track meet at Randall's Island, N. Y.—NBC 2:45, 4:30, 5 p. m.; CBS 2:45, 4:30, 5:15, 6:45.
Hale America golf championships at Chicago—NBC 2:30, 4:45, 5:15, 6:45.
Horse racing—MBS 4:30, CBS 4:30, Dwyer stakes at Aqueduct; MBS 6:30, Records, Sussex handicap at Delaware Park.

New Series
A new series, Brownstone Front, with Ruth Chopenning, monologist, playing all of the roles, is to be heard for the first time on NBC at 9:15 a. m. It comes from Chicago. The script is by her husband, James Norris.

A new summer series by the Cleveland orchestra is scheduled for CBS at 10:30 p. m., with Rudolph Ringwall, conducting. The programs are to continue through July 18.

Four war correspondents are to meet at the People's Platform dining room at 7 for a CBS discussion of "The Axis State of Mind."

A few here-and-there features: NBC 1 p. m. National Norwegian Sangerfest from Minneapolis; NBC 3:30 p. m. Truth or Consequences, from naval training station at Norfolk.

More New Programs Are Scheduled for Sunday

Three new programs, two of them war-effort features, are to be introduced to network radio on Sunday.

One is "Dear Adolf," so titled because it takes the form of letters by Hitler, the script by Stephen Vincent Benet. As now planned there will be six letters, on NBC at 5 p. m., with Raymond Massey in the first playing the part of a farmer as he thinks out loud while penning a letter.

"Commando Mary," is another, a series with guests on NBC at 11:45 a. m., which is to be based on important roles of women in winning the war. It will be conducted by Mrs. Ernesta Barlow.

The third show brings Lou Holtz back to the microphone via CBS at 7:15 p. m. His co-operators will be Mildred Bailey, of the songs, and Meyer Alexander's orchestra.

Other Specials
Arch Oboler again directs his drama toward Hitler by presenting Bette Davis in "Adolf and Mrs. Runyon" at 5:30 on NBC. . . More re-suits of the Hale America golf tournament are due on NBC at 1:45, 3:15 and 5:15. . . Among other visits the Army hour on NBC at 3:30 is to call at Camp Tyson, Tenn., barrage balloon training center, and at the signal corps photographic center, Long Island, where men from Hollywood are training for various camera activities.

Frank Chapman is to be guest narrator in the CBS program at 5 which features his wife, Gladys Swarthout. Rudy Vallee, with Lionel Barrymore as narrator, will provide the Victory parade on NBC at 7. . . Doc Rockwell is due for a showup in the Fred Allen hour, CBS at 9. . . Jimmie Fidler's Hollywood gossip, formerly heard on Mondays, is changing to 9:30 p. m. on the Blue, Sundays.

Discussion Periods
MBS 11 a. m. Reviewing Stand "Price Fixing"; CBS 12:15 p. m. Rabbi Louis Finkelstein on "War and Religion"; NBC 2:30 Chicago Roundtable, "China"; BLUE 3:15 New time for Wake Up forum "War and Free Enterprise"; CBS 4 Arch-bishop of Canterbury from London; MBS 6 Secretary Harold L. TODAY'S VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

By Dean Holliday

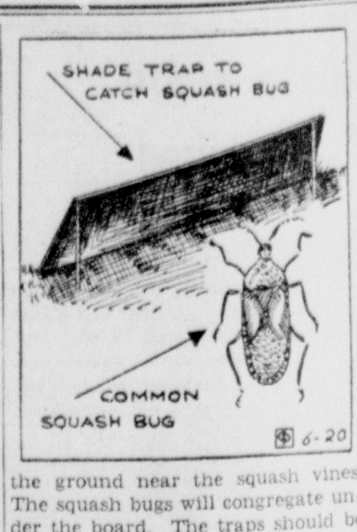

TRAPPING SQUASH BUGS
Squash bugs present an annual problem as these insects commonly appear every season on squash, especially such varieties as hubbards and marrows.
Early in the season the young squash bugs are easy to control by spraying with nicotine sulphate. When they are full grown they are much harder to kill.
The Garden-Graph shows a close-up of the squash bug, and how these bugs may be trapped by placing a small piece of board or a shingle on the ground near the squash vines. The squash bugs will congregate under the board. The traps should be examined every morning and the bugs killed.

These large brown bugs are often wrongly called "stink bugs." They injure the plants by sucking the sap from the leaves, causing them to wilt. This is usually about the time the vines are beginning to run.

Denmark now is allowed to call up only 3,000 recruits a year. They are furnished with guns but not permitted to have ammunition.

Cuba is to spend $10,000,000 for the development and diversification of agriculture, the department of Commerce reports.

Every 100 pounds of food cans contain one pound of tin and 99 pounds of steel.

For Better Meal

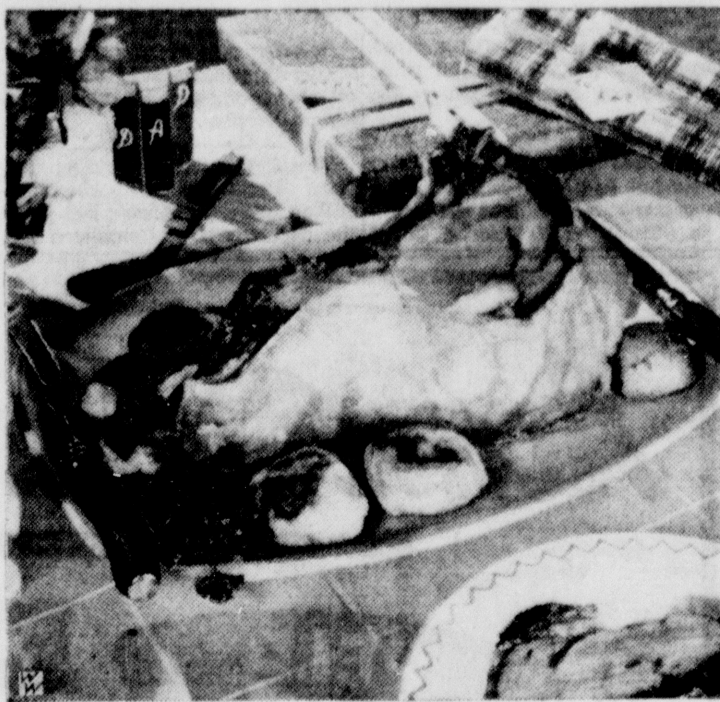

Meat should be unwrapped as soon as it comes from the store. Lay as flat as possible and keep in the coldest part of the refrigerator. If allowed to stand in the wrapping paper some of the meat juices might be absorbed by the paper.

Ginger Ale Float

Fill tall beverage glasses two-thirds full of ginger ale and add a scoop of pineapple sherbet. Garnish with mint sprigs.

Over pre-heating for short baking jobs wastes heat. Plan to do your baking and oven-cooking at the same time, when possible.

The Way to a Man's Heart

STANDING RIB ROAST... He-man fare

By LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER
Wide World Food Editor

Father's Day is one day when Mother can stretch the food budget with no pangs of conscience. It's the day when everything should center around Dad's likes—especially the dinner. If, like most men, his favorite dish is roast beef, go ahead and splurge on the choicest roast you can find, serve it up with all the trimmings and then sit back and listen to the applause.

Select a two-or-three rib roast of heavy beef, first quality. Have the butcher saw across the ribs close to and parallel with the backbone. After the ribs have been roasted the backbone can be removed easily by running a knife along it, a useful carving trick. With your roast, serve a green salad, browned potatoes, new peas or string beans, and the most festive dessert you can conjure. Here are some suggestions for desserts sure to win any man's heart:

Standing Rib Roast

Place the meat fat side up, in an open roasting pan. If you have a thermometer adjust it until the bulb reaches the center of the largest muscle. Do not cover and add no water. Roast in a slow oven (300). Season with salt and pepper after the roast has been cooking an hour. The thermometer will register 140 degrees F. for a roast cooked to the rare stage, 160 degrees F. for a medium-done roast and 170 degrees F. for a well done roast.

When there is no thermometer for cooking allow 20 minutes per pound for cooking a rare roast, 22 per pound for a medium and 27 per pound for a well-done roast.

sugar with ½ cup cocoa, ½ cup flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, 3 egg yolks and 2 cups milk. Cook slowly, stirring constantly until thick and creamy. Cool and add 3 tablespoons cream, ½ cup cubed marshmallows and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Pour into a baked crust. Beat 3 whites until stiff, add 5 tablespoons honey and beat until creamy. Roughly spread over chocolate. Bake 15 minutes in slow oven. Cool and serve. If preferred the topper can be left off and whipped cream added when served.

BANANA CREAM PUDDING: Mix ½ cup sugar with ½ cup flour, 3 egg yolks, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 cup orange juice, 3 tablespoons lemon juice and ½ cup water. Cook slowly stirring constantly until thick and creamy. Remove from heat, add 2 tablespoons butter and cool. When time to serve, mix in ½ cup sliced bananas, 1 cup whipped cream and 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind and pile into chilled glass cups.

All year 'round
the Army Gets MEAT

TYPICAL ARMY MEAL

America's men in uniform eat better than any other armed forces in the world. Here is a typical "weekday" dinner just as it is served at army camps. Note generous slices of good roast pork, centerpiece of a completely balanced meal, which includes sweet potatoes, spinach, lettuce, tomatoes, bread, butter, apple pie à la mode and coffee.

When the bugle blows "Mess" the U. S. Army eats.

So do the Navy and Marine Corps!

Experts have carefully balanced their meals with everything needed for adequate nutrition, including meat in liberal amounts.

Not at just one season, but all the year 'round—summer and winter.

Every day's rations in the army, including special rations, contain meat, except emergency Field Ration D (the chocolate bar).

MEAT is not included in army rations by mere accident, but represents years of experience in troop feeding by the Quartermaster Corps.

Liberal meat rations are maintained, in summer as in winter. The army knows that nutritional needs don't go on vacation in warm weather.

Women feeding their "men at work" this all-important summer may well take a tip from army meal planners—they know.

The rays of the summer sun will provide you with more vitamin D—but will not compensate for an otherwise unbalanced or insufficient diet.

Your family as well as the army needs a regular daily restocking of proteins, B vitamins and minerals (iron, copper and phosphorus), even when the mercury rises.

Meat provides these nutritional essentials in liberal amounts.

Ask your meat-man about summer meat ideas—you will find he has many thrifty suggestions among them.

Gasoline, Tires Saved if Family Walks to Church

Rationing of Fuel Will Reduce Attendance, Dr. Myers Says

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

It takes more self-drive to do the things you think you ought to do than to do just the things you want to do. My observation is that in areas where many adults and children walked, or went by bus or trolley car to Sunday school or church, a little snow or rain would keep fewer home than in areas where all persons went in comfortable automobiles.

Almost surely the gas rationing and tire shortage will reduce Sunday school and church attendance.

Since people are creatures of habit, those accustomed to walk or go by public transportation to church or Sunday school will not consider it a hardship to continue doing so. Indeed, they might even find it a more satisfying experience now. Yet how can healthy persons used to the ease and luxury of an automobile afford to deny themselves the necessary effort to walk or go by public conveyance to church, if they consider going to church worth while? How can they afford to let their children escape so small an effort in a worthy enterprise? How can these parents afford to let their children see them be so easily diverted from a purpose they have held up to now, to be so valuable?

Incidentally, walking to Sunday school or church would seem to afford most of us parents and our children a motive to improve our health through outdoor exercise.

Of course, many adults and whole families have been in the habit of traveling many miles by automobile to a Sunday school or church that is not accessible in any other way.

Go to Neighborhood Church
The practical way out is to attend Sunday school or church right in your own neighborhood. In towns and cities almost no homes are beyond reasonable walking distance of a church. Almost any one can learn to worship in any church, however different its services from the kind he was used to. Always in his private self he can hold to his own convictions, pray his own prayers, carry his own meditations. To be able to gain a spiritual uplift in a wholly unaccustomed church service is good proof of one's spiritual strength and growth. I have a notion that for children and adults, Sunday school or church attendance almost anywhere is better, as a rule, than no attendance, especially in these times. Attendance at public worship in one's immediate neighborhood should result in more friendliness there, in more tolerance, more democracy.

Romance Thumbs a Ride

by ALLEN EPPE

SYNOPSIS

DIAN WESTON, attractive Ardendale girl, is jilted, and her aunt, MISS MARTHA WESTON, tries to persuade her to marry JEROME CARR, a local banker. Dian happens to meet BILL ROLLINS, a New York artist, who also has been jilted.

YESTERDAY: Paul Peters and Claire Lester, the girl who jilted Bill, are eloping to be married by a justice of the peace living near Dian's farm.

CHAPTER SIX

"PAUL," SAID Claire, as the elopement progressed.

"Yes, darling!"

"Is there really any need of rushing things so?"

"Yes—there is—definitely."

"But—why?"

"I don't intend giving you a chance to change your mind again—nor risk another quarrel that'll send me off miles away from you."

"We could have a few days of fun in town—going to parties and things—and then get married."

"Nothing doing! Besides, as I told you, I have only a week's vacation, and I want to marry you tonight and make that week a honeymoon."

Claire patted Paul's hand. "You're sweet, Paul," she said. And after a moment's thought she added, "It's certainly weird the way things happen. Imagine, me all set to marry Bill Rollins, and go back to New York to live in his penthouse studio—and then your coming home."

"I'm darned glad I arrived when I did," said Paul. "I'm claiming you for my own, darling, just as you ARE my own—for always and forever. Right?"

"Yes, Paul," said Claire. "Tell me about this place in the West Indies where you live—and where you'll take me?"

"It's a sort of wild at the moment," Paul replied. "But some nice fellows and their wives are settling there, building little bungalows to live in while the Army bases are being completed. Sort of primitive, in a way—but you'll learn to like it. Bridge parties out on porches—not much dancing as yet—but lots of out-of-doors; and the excitement of seeing buildings and docks spring right up under your very nose."

"I told you we oughtn't to have been in such a hurry, Paul!"

"Just keep calm, darling," said Paul. "I'll get you safely through it all. In an hour or so the storm will be over, and you'll be Mrs. Peters. Gosh, just imagine!"

Then it happened. There was a sort of thud as the car's rear wheels dropped into a puddle. There was also the sound of wheel spinning around and around, and getting nowhere. Claire looked at Paul. Paul looked at Claire.

"I'm afraid we're stuck," Paul said.

"Well, of all things!" Claire gasped.

"Just a minute and I'll have a look," Paul scrambled out of the car. "You get behind the steering wheel and follow my directions. I'll Claire said nothing for a time. She sat there thinking. . . . A penthouse studio in New York, terraces overlooking the East river, color, life—and Bill Rollins. That—and a quickly constructed bungalow in a primitive setting, lots of young wives of engineers, and not much dancing—and Paul Peters. Something of a contrast, and yet she had finally chosen the bungalow and not the studio. She hoped she hadn't made a mistake. She studied Paul's profile, remembered his exciting love making, his enthusiasms, his strong, caressing hands. No, she hadn't made a mistake—not when Paul went with the bungalow.

"Oh!" she cried suddenly. "I felt a drop of rain. And just look at that cloud!"

"Looks like we're in for one of Ardendale's famous cloudbursts," Paul said. "Isn't this where we turn off?"

"Yes," said Claire. "And do drive carefully. The road's full of holes and gulleys."

Paul forced the engine to do its utmost and soon it was chug-chugging along a swamp-like and sed-dom-used road, a road that was none too good under the most favorable circumstances, and would be almost impassable after a heavy rain.

Then the raindrops began to patter down, tangible evidence of more to come.

"Darn it all!" said Claire. "I told you we oughtn't to have been in such a hurry, Paul!"

"Just keep calm, darling," said Paul. "I'll get you safely through it all. In an hour or so the storm will be over, and you'll be Mrs. Peters. Gosh, just imagine!"

Then it happened. There was a sort of thud as the car's rear wheels dropped into a puddle. There was also the sound of wheel spinning around and around, and getting nowhere. Claire looked at Paul. Paul looked at Claire.

"I'm afraid we're stuck," Paul said.

"Well, of all things!" Claire gasped.

"Just a minute and I'll have a look," Paul scrambled out of the car. "You get behind the steering wheel and follow my directions. I'll see if I can find a board to put under the wheels, so they can catch."

"You'll never find a board in this forsaken spot," wailed Claire.

She was right. There was no board. But Paul threw some not-too-wet leaves under the wheels, and prayed for results.

"Go on, darling, start the car!" he cried. "I'll push."

Claire did, and Paul pushed. But nothing happened. That is, nothing happened but that the spinning wheels splashed Paul with mud from head to foot.

"Well!" Claire called. "What's happening? Will we make it?"

"Practically nothing," said Paul. "I'm afraid we're stuck—for good."

"You mean we've got to sit here all night?" said Claire.

"No," Paul replied. He came around to the car and looked in. "It's not far to Dian Weston's farmhouse, is it?"

"Oh, no—only about a mile down this awful road—that's all!"

"Shall we run for it before it rains any harder?" Paul suggested. "I'll wrap the automobile robe around you—and carry you, if you like."

"Anything's better than sitting here," said Claire. "All right, let's go."

They struck out, Claire running along beside Paul at first, but later permitting him to carry her. The thunder rolled, the lightning increased, the rain grew more menacing, and the justice of the peace seemed a long, long way off.

"Now," said Claire, half sobbing, "maybe you'll agree with me that a church wedding would have been best."

"I loathe church weddings," said Paul. "I like elopements. Church weddings cause such a lot of fuss and mess."

"What do you call THIS but a mess?" Claire retorted. "You're simply covered with mud. I wouldn't know who you were if I met you face to face."

"Well, mud or no mud," said Paul, trying to laugh, "it's still little me—your future husband." He stumbled on toward Dian's farmhouse, the bulk of which the lightning revealed at brief intervals.

Morning to Night—That's Cookin'!

PRATT, Kas. (AP)—A cook who overheard a bystander ask some soldiers on a train at the railroad station how the Army was feeding them, turned around with a big, broad grin.

"Boss," said he, "we used to cook three meals every day on these diners but now we just cooks one. We starts at 5 a. m. and quits at 8 p. m. That's what's cooking, boss."

Primavera is a light-colored Mexican wood once called white mahogany. It is not related to mahogany, but except for color, has a grain very similar to mahogany.

Seventy schools in the United States have contracts to give courses by correspondence to men in the armed services.

The forthcoming apple crop of Nova Scotia will total about two million barrels, or double last year's, the department of Commerce says.

Hope To Determine The Ages of Fish

KERRVILLE, Tex. (AP)—Specialists at Texas A. & M. college are experimenting to determine the ages of fish from their scales.

Fish of various species are caught and banded and a few scales removed.

Sportsmen have been asked to turn in banded fish, when caught again, and by comparing scales the experts hope to find a way to estimate their ages.

Somerset County To Have All-Night Blackout Wednesday

Polls for Fifth
Registration in Hardy Revealed

Men between 18 and 19
Will Register for Selective Service Tuesday

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., June 19—Young men between the ages of 18 and 19 will register in Hardy county on Tuesday June 30 for the Fifth Registration as proclaimed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The Hardy County Draft Board announced seven registration points in the county where the young men may register. E. A. Haws, chairman of the board stated that it was not necessary for the eighteen and nineteen year old men to register at the nearest registration place but that they could sign up at any of the designated places in the county.

Registration will take place at Wardensville with Alfred L. Orndorff as chief registrar, at Baker with Ward Wise chief, at Moorefield with Orvon Bean chief, at Mathias with A. B. May chief, at Lost City with Marion Deahl chief, at Sniders Store with Harold Bean chief, and at Peru with James W. Dove chief. The registrars will appoint their own assistants.

Business Houses To Close

Moorefield business houses will close all day Saturday July 4 in observance of the national holiday. Stores will keep open until 10 o'clock Friday evening July 3 to enable shoppers to secure supplies.

Court News

At a special session of the County Court this week, Wendell Mathias qualified to perform the rites of matrimony as a representative of the Brethren Church. Mathias posted bond of $1,500 with Joseph Kohne as surety. The qualification of the minister was confirmed and ordered recorded.

M. L. Rigglesman, Rock Oak and H. Riley Hishman, Lost City applied for a commission as notary public. The court approved the applications and recommended that the governor so appoint them.

The report of J. Harry Dolan as commissioner of accounts was approved and Ralph J. Bean was appointed committee for Bryan Welton. Bond of $1,500 was posted by Bean.

Swimming Pool To Open

Kermitt McKeever, Park Custodian of Lost River Park, announced that the swimming pool at the State Park is open with two qualified life guards on duty at all times. The new pool was closed temporarily pending the repair of a leak which had developed in the concrete walls.

The riding horses are now available in the park as are the bicycles for use on the park trails.

MRS. MAGGIE SMILEY
DIES SUDDENLY FROM HEART ATTACK

WESTERNPORT, June 19—Mrs. Maggie Smiley, 65, widow of James Smiley, died suddenly late last night from a heart attack. She was spending the evening with the family of her sister-in-law Mrs. Louise Barnard near Beryl, W. Va., when she dropped dead while engaged in conversation.

A native of Chestnut Grove, Garrett county, and a daughter of the late Otho and Martha Lohr Barnard, she has lived in this vicinity most of her life.

Mrs. Smiley is survived by seven children, Mrs. Howard Whisner and Mrs. William Morton, Westernport; Miss Mae Smiley, Otho and Charles Smiley, Piedmont; Mrs. Edith Kady and Mrs. Frank Kasmer, Beryl. She was a sister of Washington Barnard, Westernport, and Mrs. Joseph Bennett, Artesans, Pa.

The body will remain at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Howard Whisner, 409 Walnut street, Westernport.

Senator Tydings
Will Speak at Jaycees Dinner

Oakland Group Will Sponsor
Public Social Tuesday Evening

OAKLAND, June 19—United States Senator Millard E. Tydings will speak before a group of more than 150 persons next Tuesday evening, at a public dinner meeting of the Oakland Junior Chamber of Commerce. Many more desiring to attend will be unable to do so on account of the limited number of tickets available.

The dinner is being held in the Methodist church assembly room which can accommodate just 150. Tickets for the dinner were made available last week and all were sold within a few days.

Senator Tydings will speak on "The General Outlook." Little else is being planned, except the dinner and some vocal selections by Mrs. C. C. "Dick" Helbig. The Senator's address will be the one event of the evening, according to Charles L. Briner, Jr., president of the Jaycees, with other speeches eliminated.

Senator Tydings has been in Oakland upon several other occasions and is known as an interesting and convincing speaker. In his activities in the United States Senate he has been one of the few independent men in recent years who has spoken against useless spending and against the attempt upon the part of some federal officials to usurp power.

Cannery To Open

That the cannery of the Southern Packing Company at Loch Lynn Heights would begin operations next week, probably next Thursday, was announced by Joseph Welch, plant manager.

The weather has been considered almost ideal for the growing of peas and a crop of 80,000 cases is expected from the 750 acres that are in cultivation among the farmers of the county. Farmers are receiving $67.50 per ton for their harvested crop.

Welch said that about 125 persons would be employed in the factory for a five or six-week period.

The company also has 700 acres of corn under contract which will be harvested the latter part of August or early in September. Farmers will receive $16 per ton for the corn crop.

Plan Outpost Building

In the work of reorganizing the observation posts in this county for the aircraft warning system of the U. S. Army Air corps, the local American Legion committee announced this week that it was the desire of the air corps that a building of some kind be constructed here immediately for use of the volunteers who are expected to offer their services.

The building must be in town limits so that people will be available for duty twenty-four hours each day, and P. R. Shaffer, member of the committee, said it was planned to erect a small building somewhere along Third street.

Completes First Week

The Daily Vacation Bible School of the Oakland Protestant churches completed its first week, with more than a hundred children enrolled, and a staff of fifteen teachers and helpers, according to the Rev. Minor Sprague, who is directing the school; the children are interested and attentive and doing a high grade of work.

The school, held in the Methodist church, begins at 9 o'clock with separate worship services for the preschool, first, second and third grade children, and for the older, Miss Elizabeth West, teacher of preschool class, leads devotions of the primary group, while the older, Miss Burrata Arnold, Roman Catholic, leads the older group.

Six Blasts of Fire Siren
Will Warn Citizens of Simulated Air Raid

MEYERSDALE, Pa., June 19—There will be an all-night blackout test in the group of counties comprising central Pennsylvania, of which group Somerset county is a unit, by order of the U. S. Army Fighter Command from dusk to dawn Wednesday night, June 23, and in the western group on Thursday night, June 25. These blackouts, which are also sponsored by the State Council of Defense, will have an important educational angle in an endeavor to teach the ten million citizens of Pennsylvania how to carry on normal duties all night long with a minimum of light showing.

To date Windber and Meyersdale are the only Somerset county communities that have had experimental blackouts. But it must be noted that for the blackout ordered for next Wednesday night all the rules and regulations announced for the first blackout in Meyersdale on May 11, will be enforced here during the half-hour total blackout ordered for next Wednesday night.

Six blasts of the regular fire siren will announce the alert signal for the total blackout in Meyersdale. The time of this half-hour will not be known until the warning signal is flashed from Altoona on Wednesday night. Details of all these regulations may be obtained from officers and members of the local Defense Council. It has been announced that there will be other all-night blackouts to follow the one to be held Wednesday evening.

Irwin Rites Held

Rites for Mrs. Emma Irwin, 75, a former resident of Meyersdale, who died at her home in Fairmont, W. Va., Tuesday morning, were held yesterday afternoon at the Cover home, Front street, Meyersdale.

Declines of Fractions to a Point Predominate at Close

By BERNARD S. O'HARA

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP) — The general direction of the stock market was down today although scattered issues, including rail specialties, successfully contested the trend. The war news continued to intimidate speculative and investment quarters to some extent. Moderate losing tendencies ruled at the start and, at the close, declines of fractions to a point or more predominated. There were a few wider dips. Transfers totalled 287,510 shares against 359,120 yesterday.

Lifting Wall Street spirits to some extent was the ditching of the ancient dictum that "when Erie common pays a dividend there'll be ice in hell." Directors of the road actually voted a 50-cent payment on the common and certificates, first such payment for any Erie company in 76 years. The common gained 1/4 at 6.

Allied Chemical dropped 3 1/2 and Douglas Aircraft 2 1/2 on restricted turnouts. Lesser setbacks were suffered by U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Sante Fe, Kennebec, U. S. Rubber, Sears, Roebuck, General Electric, Westinghouse, Dow Chemical and Texas Co.

American Telephone was one of the new leaders to cling to a modest advance. It was up 1/4. Retreating in the curb were Gulf Oil, Aluminum of America, American Cyanamid, Electric Bond and Share and Pennroad. Transactions for the junior market aggregated 46,275 shares versus 59,260 the day before.

to the fact that the story is spread over three separate periods of time.

"Blonde from Singapore" Playing at Garden

Left Erikson, who joined the United States Navy on July 1, made one last picture in Hollywood before entering the service. Oddly enough, in the film, "The Blonde from Singapore," which is currently playing at the Garden theater, Erikson portrays a sailor!

In addition, during the final scenes of the film, the husky movie star wears another uniform, that of an RAF officer. Also featured in the Columbia hit are Florence Rice, as a beautiful fortune hunter, Gordon Jones, Don Beddoe and Adele Rowland. "Devil's Trail," starring Tex Ritter and Bill Elliott, is the latter part of the Garden's double-feature program.

"Syncopation" Has Love and Music

Music and romance form the twin themes of William Dieterle's new screen offering, "Syncopation," now showing at the Liberty, which stars the quartette of Adolphe Menjou, Jackie Cooper, Bonita Granville and George Bancroft.

With its action moving from New Orleans to Chicago, the absorbing plot revolves around the efforts of Miss Granville and Cooper to popularize up-to-date dance rhythms and to lift syncopated music from disrepute to public favor.

The romance between the two young people, and their stormy career as the World War and then the prohibition era influence them and their ideas, make for the many tense happenings of the picture.

Songs and musical novelties, ranging from a short symphony to a red-hot "jam session" of the nation's favorite dance bandsmen, and from negro spirituals to old-time and modern hit tunes, feature the unusual offering.

In addition to the three principals, the cast includes Ted North, Connie Boswell, Todd Duncan, Jessie Grayson, Frank Jenks in prominent parts.

No Punches Pulled In "Sunday Punch"

"Rags" Ragland, Broadway's funniest comedian now in Hollywood, concluded, after competing a scene for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Sunday Punch," which starts tonight at the Maryland theater, that realism in motion pictures was nothing but a pain in the neck—or, to be more accurate, a pain in the face.

His role called for Jean Rogers to land a heavy swat across his face for pushing her into a telephone booth while hiding from Sam Levine, his fight promoter. Attempts to shoot the scene with pulled slaps didn't photograph realistically enough so Director David Milst gave the starlet orders to let go heavily.

It took three good swats to get the long shot, two more for a close-up of "Rags"; three for a medium shot at a different angle, two for a close-up of Jean and one for Levine, and still another for a publicity still.

"Suddenly seriously ill," was the report Ragland sent out of his dressing room at the conclusion of the scene.

The second feature, "Lady For a Night," stars Joan Blondell and John Wayne.

Autry Western Ends Today at Embassy

The top screen cowboy in top screen entertainment! That's Gene Autry in Republic's "Home in Wyoming," musical western which ends today at the Embassy theater, that realism in motion pictures was nothing but Autry's popularity, let him but witness the pleasant, unassuming manner in which he portrays the ex-rodéo star who returns to his own outfit, when he learns it is in trouble, to pull it back on its feet again.

When there is evidence of foul play behind the rodeo's impending downfall, Gene goes into action, and soon the plains resound with the gunfire of pursuing cowboys and fleeing villains.

Smiley Burnette and Fay McKenzie again headline the supporting cast. Smiley is his usual hilarious screen personality, and Fay is lovelier than ever as the heroine.

An outstanding supporting cast includes James Seay, Chick Chandler, Forrest Taylor, Joe Strauch, Jr.,

Huge Cast Featured in Strand's "King Row"

Sixty-seven speaking parts is the amazing total in the important Warner Bros. production, "Kings Row," opening today at the Strand. Not since "Anthony Adverse," perhaps, as any Hollywood film required so many established players as this screen version of the best-seller novel by Henry Bellamann.

The line-up of the "Kings Row" cast includes Ann Sheridan, Robert Cummings, Ronald Reagan, Betty Field, Charles Coburn, Claude Rains, Nancy Coleman, Kaaren Verne, Judith Anderson, Harry Davenport, Maria Ouspenskaya, Ludwig Stossel, Ernest Cossart, Ilka Grunig, Minor Watson, Pat Moriarity, Egon Brecher, Ann Todd, Scott Beckett, Mary Tomas and a host of minor players.

The almost unprecedented number of speaking parts is attributable

"The Authority on Authorities."

SHOWING GREAT LENGTH MORE AND more fine players are refraining from using an informative double when they have appreciable length in two suits, but show one of the two suits at once. If the hand is strong enough, they do it with a jump of one more than necessary to overcall the opponent's bid. By thus showing an unbalanced hand to their partners, they encourage suit showing in response. Instead of No Trumps when possible stoppers of the hostile suit are held.

2. 1♦ 2♦ Pass 3♦
Pass 4♥

Notice what a tough job East had to select the right bid after his partner doubled at Table 1. He feared that 2-Hearts would be too weak, that his hand was not strong enough for 3-Hearts, and that 1-No Trump would show just about his degree of strength, including a likely diamond stopper. West was afraid to bid only 2-Spades after that, so probably did the best thing with 3-Spades. East now could not show hearts at four, but had to bid 3-No Trumps, which could not be made. After the diamond K, South switched to the heart 10. East ran eight tricks, then had to lose one to North, whereupon diamonds defeated him.

When West showed his strong, but unbalanced, hand with 2-Spades, East shied away from No Trumps to proclaim his hearts. West naturally took that to game. As the cards are located, a grand slam got made, which might have been bid if West had cue-bid the diamonds after East showed hearts, and then had Blackwood to find what Kings East held in the other suits. By that method, 6-Hearts would have been conservative bidding after the original sound start with West's 2-Spades instead of a double.

Your Week-End Lesson Why is a major suit game contract usually preferable to one at No Trumps when you and your partner possess a fit of four trumps in one hand opposite four in the other, with each of you having a side doubleton in different suits?

Allegany County GOP Leaders Will Attend Meeting

Special Session of State Committee Scheduled Today in Baltimore

Lewis M. Wilson, chairman, James Park, of Lonaconing, treasurer, others of the Republican State Central Committee for Allegany county and several other party leaders of the city and county have planned to go to Baltimore today to attend a special meeting of the state committee.

The meeting, called by W. David Tighman, Jr., will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Southern hotel here for the purpose of discussing problems confronting the party in the coming state campaign.

"Because of the gravity of the times," Tighman stated in his letter to the committee members calling them into the meeting, "I have been urged by many Republicans throughout the state to have a discussion of these questions, which vitally concern the welfare and best interests of our party."

The discussions will embrace candidates, policies and party harmony.

Wright Favors Tait

An interesting sidelight about the meeting is contained in an Associated Press report about the meeting stating that J. Purdon Wright, of Baltimore county, who has been discussed as a possible gubernatorial candidate, will not be able to attend it because of other business. Wright is reported to have stated, however, that he favored Glen L. Tait as the Republican gubernatorial nominee.

Tighman and Truman B. Cash, of Westminster, Democratic state chairman, have agreed upon September 8 as the date for holding the primary election this year. The date was chosen because, under provisions of the state law pertaining to voting by mail, sufficient time had to be given to enable those absent in the military services to cast their ballots.

Plan Convention Sept. 18
On this account, and in order to conform to the law, the state convention of the party will be held September 18. Tighman has announced. Formal authorization by letter of that date as well as the place has been requested of the committee members by him. The state convention usually held in Baltimore and that city will in all likelihood be chosen for it again.

Roof Walker Will Get Mental Test

Paul Conlon, of Frostburg, Captured by Police Atop Hotel

A man who gave his name as Paul Conlon, 25, of Frostburg, provided much excitement shortly after 1 a. m. yesterday when he climbed out on a ledge atop the Fort Cumberland hotel and shouted that he was going to jump.

Persons on the street, which is six floors below, were attracted by Conlon's shouts and soon a large crowd gathered to watch. Conlon proceeded to give a nerve-racking exhibition of tottering on the ledge and swinging on the guy wires of a large neon sign.

Lieut. James Van and Officers Edwin Lilya, James Weakley and Arthur Kennell went to the roof, after taking off their coats and caps to avoid alarming Conlon, and succeeded in coaxing him back on the roof from the ledge. They told Conlon one of the officers was a friend of his.

As Conlon stepped on the roof the four officers grabbed him and Conlon fought them for some time before they were able to handcuff him and take him to the city jail. Lieut. Van said Conlon registered at the hotel about 11 p. m. and later climbed two flights of stairs and gained access to the roof. Conlon is employed at the Celanese plant.

He was later taken to the county jail for a mental examination by a physician.

Copies of Ordinances Will Be Given Police For Study of Laws

Police Commissioner James Orr has provided for mimeographing the various city ordinances pertaining to the police department for distribution to officers. This will give the policemen an opportunity to familiarize themselves with the laws, he added.

Commissioner Orr said the procedure is the same as that followed in other cities and that after the copies are in the hands of the officers they will be expected to study the law and know it. The booklets will be in loose leaf form so that they can be kept up to date.

The work started Monday and is being done by Miss Mary Blades, a 1942 graduate of Fort Hill High School. About three weeks will be necessary to compile the twenty-seven ordinances.

Kemp Relinquishes Post as Supervisor At Sylvan Retreat

Resignation Is Accepted by Board of County Commissioners

The resignation of John H. Kemp, superintendent of Sylvan Retreat, was presented at the meeting of Allegany county commissioners yesterday, and accepted. In his letter to the commissioners, Kemp stated that due to failing health, the illness of Mrs. Kemp, and a recent death in his family, he wished to resign, effective at once.

Mr. Kemp had been superintendent at Sylvan Retreat, for seventeen years. Sylvan Retreat, located on Furnace street extended, adjacent to the county home, is the county institution for mental deficiencies.

The resignation was accepted by the county commissioners.

Mr. Kemp, according to attaches at Sylvan Retreat has moved to Frostburg, and William M. Ma-theny, superintendent of Allegany County Home, is in temporary charge.

Brewery Employees' Union, Companies Sign Contract

Adverse Conditions Prevent Workers from Seeking Raise

Because of the high cost of production and the various curtailments of business by the government, members of the Local Union No. 265 of the International Union of United Brewery, Flour, Cereal, and Soft Drink Workers of America, which comprises employees of the Cumberland Brewing Company, and the Queen City Brewing Company, both of this city, decided not to seek wage increases at this time and signed a contract with the two companies which will run until May 1, 1943.

Listed as conditions to hinder the advancement of the companies at this time were the costs of the materials used in the production of beer, the curtailment, by the government, of crowns and the proposed new $1 per barrel increase in the federal beer tax.

The contract was signed by F. Brooke Whiting, president of the Queen City Brewing Company; G. William Bibbey, president of the Cumberland Brewing Company; M. F. Heatley, representative of the International Union, and John Clark, Walter Reighard, Jr., Arthur Hartman, George Conley, Henry Ruhl, and John M. Hager, all members of the negotiating committee of Local Union No. 265.

Three Deeds and Four Mortgages Are Filed At the Court House
Three deeds, three mortgages and one chattel mortgage were filed for record yesterday in the clerk's office, Allegany county court house. Property transfers included Lots Nos. 4 and 5, block No. 1, of J. H. Reinhart's sub-division along Mt. Savage road, conveyed from Joseph H. Reinhart to Martha May Riley. Winner Bowman and Nora P. Bowman conveyed Lot No. 637 section B, Bowman's Cumberland valley addition to Flossie Robinson. The deed was dated June 8, 1937, and was filed for record yesterday. Rebecca M. Jenkins, Edward J. Winters and Marguerite C. Winters transferred two lots near Midland station of the old Georges Creek and Cumberland Railroad, to Roy Earl Beeman and Colleen Beeman.

Second Machine Tool Survey Is Being Made Here by WPA

A second check-up on machine tools in this area was begun yesterday when W. H. Beattie, facilities division of the Pittsburgh Ordnance District, War Department, arrived here, accompanied by two assistants.

The first survey was conducted in this area a short time ago by the Cumberland Industrial Survey and Development Committee. Forms and methods of the War Production Board were used by the canvassers and information was forwarded to the WPB.

Commissioners Asked To Improve Two Roads

County Commissioners were requested to authorize repairs and improvements to two county roads, at their regular meeting yesterday morning. Bertha Tipton of North Branch asked that the county road be continued past her property. Harry Gordon asked that Break-neck road be hard surfaced to Williams road. The road is partially paved beginning at Baltimore pike. Both suggestions were taken under advisement.

Samuel Lewis Dies

Samuel Lewis, 64, of Paw Paw, W. Va., died last night at 8:10 o'clock at Memorial hospital. He had been a patient since May 11.

One Killed, 13 Injured in Allegany County Traffic Mishaps in May accidents reported, thirty-eight persons were killed, 703 were injured. In all the counties outside of Baltimore city, there were 449 accidents, thirty one killed and 247 injured.

It is interesting to note that most fatalities occurred in the counties, with only seven of the total of thirty-eight in Baltimore city.

Judge Sloan Urges Continuance Of Voluntary Aid to Charities

Jurist Is Principal Speaker at Chest Testimonial Dinner

When private social and charity agencies are no longer supported voluntarily by the public, they become public agencies supported by taxation, and socialism is the result, Judge D. Lindley Sloan stated last night, in an address at the annual Community Chest testimonial dinner at Central Y. M. C. A.

The dinner, given in honor of campaign leaders, Walter C. Capper and Mrs. Morris Rosenbaum, was attended by 40 persons.

Dr. Frank M. Wilson introduced Judge Sloan, who made the presentation of certificates of service to Mrs. Rosenbaum and Capper.

Pronounces Campaign Success
Commenting on the campaign, Judge Sloan pronounced it an outstanding success, despite the fact that the campaign closed $3,000 short of goal. He ventured the opinion that the campaign was the most successful ever held here, because the money raised was wrung out of the pockets of citizens of Cumberland whose pockets had been wrung out time and time again.

You can't deal with people, and with the problems of people through public agencies as you can through private organizations, Judge Sloan continued. And private organizations here and everywhere must depend largely upon the goodness in the hearts of people who want to be kind and charitable and decent.

The Community Chest is of paramount importance in the community. Its agencies do work that cannot be done more completely in any other way. "I congratulate the leaders and the workers and the good people of Cumberland who made this successful campaign possible," he concluded.

Harold W. Smith, president of the Community Chest, outlined the result of the campaign. Capper, Mrs. Rosenbaum and Mrs. R. R. Henderson also spoke.

Express Appreciation
Both Mrs. Rosenbaum and Capper expressed their appreciation for the recognition of their services. Capper credited the workers and the public with the success of the drive and said he is personally appreciative of the work done by all concerned.

The testimonial dinner is an annual affair, given by chest workers and executives of the chest and its agencies, personally, to pay tribute to the campaign leaders.

Great Chiefs Will Visit the Red Men
Six great chiefs of the Improved Order of Red Men of the State of Maryland will pay an annual visit to Tonkaway Tribe No. 120 at a class adoption and dinner tomorrow at the "Wigwam", 25 Bedford street.

A class of twelve "palefaces" will be adopted at ceremonies scheduled to start at 2:30 p. m., and the initiation of the new members will be in charge of the degree team headed by Ernest Hess.

The great chiefs will be guests of Tonkaway Tribe at a dinner in the "wigwam" at 4:30 p. m.

The visiting delegation will include Great Prophet John M. Lilly, of North East, Md.; Great Sachem Alvey C. Zittle, Boonsboro; Great Senor Sagamore Albert Holler, Westernport; Great Keeper of Records, Charles H. Thorne, Baltimore; Past Great Sachem, Thomas H. Taylor, Midland, and Great Keeper of Wampum, Thomas A. Bohannen, Baltimore.

Willison Is Freed Under $1,000 Bond

Man Held on Draft Law Charge Will Await Action of Federal Jury

Marshall Preeland Willison, 27-year-old Baltimore and Ohio railroad employee, committed to jail two days ago on a Federal charge of violating terms of the Selective Service Act, was released last evening under $1,000 bond. He had been committed to the county jail in default of bond by U. S. Commissioner Willbur V. Wilson to await action of the Federal grand jury in Baltimore.

According to authorities, Willison registered at LaPlata, Md., but failed to return his questionnaire sent out April 8, 1941. After moving to Cumberland, Willison is reported to have ignored repeated requests by the LaPlata draft board for return of the questionnaire. Willison said he objected to some of the questions.

Ali Ghan Shrine Will Induct 14 At Cermonial

Parade and Concert Will Precede Annual Event Here Monday Night

Fourteen candidates will be initiated into Ali Ghan Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, at the Victory Ceremonial to be held Monday June 22, at 8 p. m., in the Maryland theater, it was announced yesterday by Paul Heuer, a member of the committee on arrangements.

The ceremonial, an annual affair of the Shriners, is held for the purpose of forming a caravan and conducting novices across the hot sands to the Holy City of Mecca.

Petitions of fourteen candidates were approved last night at a regular business meeting of the temple in the Shrine club rooms, Baltimore.

Candidates will report to the recorder at Masonic temple Monday at 4 p. m., and at 5 p. m., a dinner will be served in the banquet hall.

Parade Starts at 7 p. m.
A parade from Prospect Square and Washington street will commence at 7 p. m., and the route will include Washington street to Baltimore street to North Centre street to Market street to North Mechanic street and the Maryland theater.

The parade will be in charge of Ralph L. Rizer, Paul Heuer and Charles R. McFerran and will comprise a police escort, flag unit, Potentate Leander Schaidt and his divan, past potentates, chanters, band, patrol, candidates, wrecking crew and Shriners in automobiles.

Prior to the exercises in the theater a band concert will be given in front of the theater.

The theater program will include a memorial service for eight members of the temple who have died in the past year and a vaudeville show which is scheduled to start at 10 p. m. A reception will be held at the Shrine club rooms, Baltimore street, at 11 p. m.

Five hundred Shriners will attend the ceremonial, including visitors from Wheeling, Altoona, Baltimore and Washington.

Committee Members Named
Paul Heuer and Charles R. McFerran will be in charge of the candidates in the parade. John Ehrbar, assisted by the wrecking crew will be in charge of theater exercises. Others on the committee on arrangements include: William Porter, Robert Shuck, Sidney Storer and Thomas Peters, in charge of Baltimore street club; F. E. Smith, dinner and entertainment; Ralph L. Rizer, parade; B. V. Welsh, flag unit; John Morgan, patrol; Russell Shaffer, band; R. Hilary Lancaster, director of band, and Samuel E. Fleagle, director in charge of the chanters.

American Legion Post Will Hold Ox Roast Tomorrow at Fairgo
Officials of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, expect between 300 and 400 persons to attend their ox roast at the Cumberland Fair Grounds tomorrow afternoon. The public is invited. Members of the post and the club will attend free of charge.

Fort Cumberland Post will nominate officers Tuesday, June 23. The annual election is scheduled for July 14.

Membership of the post is now 565 and officials are hopeful of reaching the 600 mark by July 1.

The Sons of the Legion membership campaign will close on July 1 and only those who are paid up by that date will be eligible for special rates at the boys' camp.

Beetle Traps Are Being Distributed In This Area

The annual distribution of Japanese beetle traps in infested areas of this section was started yesterday when a corps of men headed by George Tennant, Frostburg, began placing the traps in the front yards of local residents.

Dr. George F. Langford, specialist in charge of insect control at the University of Maryland, said the traps will be set up a short time later by men employed on the project. He stated that the new method of distributing the traps and setting them up later, was chosen as a means of saving on trucking use.

National Officials To Speak Tomorrow At Townsend Picnic

J. G. Mains, national representative for Maryland, and C. L. Nones, representative of Pennsylvania, will be the principal speakers tomorrow at the Townsend Club rally and picnic in Constitution park.

The speaking program is scheduled to start at 2 p. m. J. W. Miller, of Cumberland, deputy national representative, will introduce the speakers.

A. L. Marple is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Officials of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, expect between 300 and 400 persons to attend their ox roast at the Cumberland Fair Grounds tomorrow afternoon. The public is invited. Members of the post and the club will attend free of charge.

Fort Cumberland Post will nominate officers Tuesday, June 23. The annual election is scheduled for July 14.

Membership of the post is now 565 and officials are hopeful of reaching the 600 mark by July 1.

The Sons of the Legion membership campaign will close on July 1 and only those who are paid up by that date will be eligible for special rates at the boys' camp.

State Borrowing Puzzles McKeldin

Republican Leader Sees No Reason for Private Financing

BALTIMORE, June 19 (AP)—Theodore R. McKeldin said today he could not understand why the state of Maryland had to borrow from a private industry to finance public improvements if its reported surplus of more than $9,000,000 was a "real" balance.

McKeldin, considered a likely entrant in the Republican gubernatorial primary, referred to a plan under which the Glenn L. Martin Company advanced $93,000 to finance the cost of part of a supplemental water main to the aircraft plant.

In a speech before a Baltimore club, McKeldin said that when the municipal administration was faced with unforseen civilian defense expenses, it found a way to meet these outlays on a "sound" basis.

McKeldin and other state Republican leaders will meet tomorrow to discuss the party ticket during the coming campaign.

His friends have said he is considering seriously making a bid for the party's gubernatorial nomination. He was secretary to former Mayor William F. Broening during Broening's second administration and in 1939 lost the mayoralty race to Howard W. Jackson.

The meeting of the Maryland G. O. P. leaders tomorrow was called by W. David Tighman, Jr., Republican State Central committee chairman.

SUCCUMBS—Funeral services for Randolph T. Wishmyer, 59, former city councilman, who died Wednesday in Memorial hospital, will be conducted today at the home, 129 Race street, with interment in Greenmount cemetery. Mr. Wishmyer, who was familiarly known as "Buck," served as commissioner of water and light from 1932 to 1934 under the administration of Mayor George Henderson. A native of Cumberland, Wishmyer was a plasterer by trade and was one of the city's outstanding bowlers in his younger days.

Meeting Is Called
James B. Reinhart, of Cumberland, vice-president of the Sixth district of the National Association of Insurance Agents, yesterday called a meeting of county agents for Monday, June 22, at noon in the Golden Gate Tea Room, South Centre street, for the purpose of discussing joint action on the plan.

The insurance industry has been requested by the federal government to utilize its offices and facilities to make war risk insurance available to the public as cheap as possible. It is placed upon the basis of patriotic duty without profit and it is not to be considered in any sense an ordinary commercial activity.

A billion dollar War Corporation financed by funds of the RFC has been established in Washington, D. C. The new plan must become effective as of July 1, 1942, for the reason that the present automatic government protection expires on June 30. The government, through the War Damage Corporation, is preparing to write War Risk Insurance with the insurance companies acting as fiduciary agents.

Rubber Salvage Drive Here Nets Over Thirty Tons

61,646 Pounds Collected in Five Days, MacBeth Announces

Cumberland's salvaged rubber pile continues to grow daily, as more and more people bring their rubber to local gasoline stations, according to Robert V. MacBeth, county chairman of the collection campaign.

Last evening, a total of 61,646 pounds had been collected since the campaign opened Monday.

As the campaign progresses, every resident is urged to look his house over from cellar to attic, to check his garage and search his whole property for all the old, unused rubber he can find. Any kind of rubber article will help swell the pile and help in the war effort.

MacBeth has estimated that the present pile of rubber can be doubled if everyone co-operates. It has also been suggested that motorists contribute the rubber mat from their automobile trunks and from the floor of their cars. These can be replaced with carpet or linoleum.

Many automobiles have mirrors, ash trays and other gadgets attached with rubber suction cups. All of these in one salvage pile might mean enough rubber to help construct vital defense weapons. Old jar rings, bottle stoppers, rubber bands, rubber shoes, hot water bottles, bathing caps, chair covers and chair cushions made of rubber, old rubber aprons, inner tubes, rubber heels, boots and countless other rubber items can be reclaimed for use in machinery, weapons, cars and other necessary items. Everyone can and should help.
